BRITISH QUIT GREECE; 6 AIDS OF EX-KING DIE

Leaders Who Lost Turk War Shot.

BULLETIN.

ATHENS, Nov. 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—The British minister, F. O. Lindley, has notified the Greek government that Great Britain has broken off relations with Greece, and that he is leaving Athens tonight. C. H. Bentinck, British member of the financial control, remains here.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ATHENS, Nov. 28.—The execution of former Greek cabinet ministers—Messrs. Gounaris, Baltazzi, Stratos, Theotokis and Protopapadakis, and Gen. Hadjanestis—took place at sunrise this morning on the outskirts of Athens, according to a government communique issued at noon today. Messrs. Gounaris, Stratos and Protopapadakis were former premiers.

Just before Gen. Hadjanestis faced the firing squad, because of his poor handling of the Asia Minor campaign, he was degraded, his sword being broken and his buttons cut off. Gen. Stratigos and Admiral Goudas were condemned to life imprisonment and were also degraded.

All Shot at Once.

The condemned men received the last communion from the priests of the Averof prison just as dawn was beginning to break. Just before the word was given to fire the men were asked if they had anything to say. All replied in the negative.

The entire six stood side by side before several platoons of soldiers. The bodies were given to relatives.

Died for Losing War.

ATHENS, Nov. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—A statement issued by the court martial which condemned to death the former ministers, giving the reasons for imposing the sentences of death, says in effect that the defendants knowingly concealed from the people the danger involved in King Constantine's return to the throne, and that, although Greece was breaking away from her alliances, they did their utmost to consolidate Constantine's throne in order to enjoy office under him.

"By terroristic methods," the statement adds, "they stifled all public opinion contrary to them, arranged with Gen. Hadjanests a pretended offensive against Constantinople, and thereby brought about the enemy's offensive and the collapse of the Greek front in Asia Minor, thus deliberately delivering a large part of the army into the enemy's hands.

"They therefore were convicted in accordance with several articles of the military and penal codes, of conspiring to commit high treason."

U. S. May Refuse Recognition.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The execution by the Greek government of former ministers of state on charges of treason growing out of the Greek military debacle in Anatolia is expected here to influence importantly the American government's attitude toward Greece and to postpone indefinitely recognition by the United States of the Greek government.

Jefferson Caffery, the American chargé d'affaires at Athens, on his "personal" account advised against the execution of the death penalties, it was said at the state department.

The United States would not necessarily be following the British government's policy, even though this government's policy should coincide with the British, as in latter years, excepting in the case of Peru alone, this government has withheld recognition from governments with "bloody" hands.

British Send Warning.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—F. O. Lindley, British minister in Athens, was instructed to convey a stern warning to the Greek revolutionary government that it would put itself outside of the family of civilized nations if it carried out the death sentences imposed on the members of the late cabinet, whose trials have just been finished.

Mr. Lindley visited the Greek foreign office twice before the final order for execution and as a result of his second visit a cabinet council was called which promulgated a decree transferring to Col. Plastiras, as sole representative of the revolutionaries, the right of proceeding with revolutionary pronouncements.

HURLEY PLANS WRITS TO STOP HOME BREAKERS

Halt Divorce Evil, Jurist's Demand.

Love pirates who traffic in the affections of misunderstood husbands or abused wives are to be the target of sweeping injunctions or restraining orders which will be issued by Judge Timothy D. Hurley in all cases where evidence of home undermining is properly presented to him, the jurist announced yesterday.

Convinced by the testimony of hundreds of victims of the "other man" or "other woman" that powerful influence exerted by an outside agency might have broken the triangle before it was formed and saved another home and family to society, Judge Hurley widened the scope of his three weeks' war on "easy divorces" to include a drive on the "domestic parasite."

Haul Sirens Into Court.

Information that her husband has succumbed to a siren, if included in a petition for separate maintenance by the wife, will result, Judge Hurley asserts, in the issuance of a forthwith citation for the "other woman" to explain her conduct. Substantiation of the charges will be followed by an irrevocable decree restraining the interloper from "seeing, talking to, or writing to" the husband.

"Just today," Judge Hurley said, "two persons, one a husband and the other a wife, visited me with pathetic stories. Each said their mate was slowly becoming alienated from his or her family by one of these dastardly thieves who respect neither the sanctity of the marital pact nor the inherent right of children to the love and affection of two clean and constant parents.

Advice to Wayward.

"In neither case had the estrangement progressed to the point of actual separation, and all that was needed to reunite the family was the erection of a legal barrier that could not be hurdled by the seducer and a bit of kindly but firm advice to the wayward spouse.

"If I can crush one of these parasites before they have attached themselves, I will have saved one family from disruption, and it is my belief that by harsh treatment of the vamp and the Don Juan, one of the foremost causes of divorce will be eliminated."

Jail Menaces Pair.

Mrs. Stancie Spewakon, with John Oszanowski, 158 Lincoln avenue, Harvey, will appear before Judge Hurley on Friday in an effort to disprove charges made by Joseph Spewakon, 8839 Commercial avenue, that Mrs. Spewakon had deserted three small children for Oszanowski. Failure to acquit themselves of the charge means heavy jail sentences for adultery, Judge Hurley said.

Mrs. Martha Engler was refused a divorce from Edward Engler, 6142 Giddings avenue, by Judge Hurley when Attorney Harry Fireman, counsel for Mrs. Engler, admitted that he hoped to substantiate charges of cruelty by the testimony of the 12 year old son of the couple.

"I refuse to wreck a home," said Judge Hurley, "by countenancing the moral crime of permitting a boy of such tender years to testify against his father or mother."

His New Horse 'Dynamite' Blows Up $10,000 Worth

"Dynamite," a new horse purchased yesterday by Alfonso Valchret, 1936 Harvard street, Maywood, lived up to the full significance of his name an hour after he was taken from the auction block. He "tore loose" in Oak Park, hurled his new master through a plate glass window, and finally ended up in the Columbus park lagoon in Oak Park, after doing damage in the park amounting to $10,000.

WIFE PROCLAIMS WHY SHE DOESN'T WANT A HUSBAND

A notice, legally phrased, of her intention to desert her husband was served upon the world by Mrs. Lillian H. Hamby of Freeport, Ill., defendant in the suit for divorce of James B. Hamby, an automobile salesman living at 823 East 49th street, and which was heard yesterday by Judge Harry B. Miller. The notice reads:

"To whom it may concern: I have decided to sever my marriage ties with J. B. Hamby for the following reasons:

"1. I have not the affection for him that a woman should have for her husband.

"2. I have not the desire to nor can I perform the duties of a wife to a husband. Even the slightest caress from him to me is distasteful to me.

"3. Marriage interferes with my marriage beliefs, and by severing my marriage ties I can go back to the church of my choice.

"My husband is in no way to blame. He has done his best to fulfill the duties of a loving husband."

PEGGY MARSH ON SIX MONTHS' TRIALSEPARATION

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—Peggy Marsh, who sued the Marshall Field estate for the support of a son whose father she alleged was the late Henry Field, is back in London and says she is returning to the stage. She says she may divorce her husband, Albert L. Johnson, but they have agreed to try a six months' separation first.

"I not only loved him, but I still love him," she said, "but he is so temperamental and high strung that I decided we had better part for six months to see how things develop."

Peggy is planning to open a dance club in London with the latest in cocktail bars. She will send her son Tony to an English school.

GIRL WELCOMED BY MRS. WARREN

Young Mother and Child Meet Friends.

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Greeting each other with the affection of life-long friends, Nancy Jordan, the English girl whose admittance to this country was delayed because, though unmarried, she has a child, and Mrs. Frank G. Warren of Kansas City, met tonight for the first time.

Mrs. Warren is the divorced wife of the man whom Miss Jordan met in London during the war and whose name had frequently been mentioned in connection with the young Englishwoman's fight against the immigration department's barriers.

It was at Mrs. Warren's invitation that Mrs. Jordan undertook the voyage to America with her three year old son. She was seated in the parlor of the home of R. D. Jenkins, personal friend of the Warrens, at 676 Riverside drive, the light of a table lamp making her blonde hair glisten, when Mrs. Warren arrived from Kansas City.

"I Know We'll Get Along Fine."

"I am so glad to see you, Miss Jordan," was her greeting to the girl, who earlier in the evening denied that Mr. Warren was the father of her son.

"And it is indeed a pleasure to meet you, Mrs. Warren," was Miss Jordan's smiling reply.

"I know we are going to get along fine together," said Mrs. Warren to reporters.

"Mr. Warren's mother and I have taken a great interest in Miss Jordan through our correspondence and we were indeed gratified when she accepted our invitation to visit us.

"I would like you to make it clear that my divorce, which was granted about a year ago, was in absolutely no regard brought about, directly or indirectly, through the friendship between my husband and Miss Jordan. As he said in a statement the other day, it was brought about by 'incompatibility' and nothing more."

Miss Jordan told Mrs. Warren she was willing to go to Kansas City at any time.

Denies Warren Is Father.

Before the arrival of Mrs. Warren the girl mother, wearing a cream colored dress covered with black embroidered eyelets, spoke unhesitatingly of herself and her relations with Mr. Warren, but denied firmly that he is the father of her child. She met Mr. Warren in 1918, while she was a bookkeeper in the British office of Famous Players-Lasky corporation. They met frequently and a close friendship was the result.

"I came to this country," said Miss Jordan, "only to see Mrs. Warren. I learned to love her through her letters and I gladly accepted her invitation. I did not come to see Mr. Warren and I did not come to get married. All the love I have is for my little boy and I have enough to do to take care of him, without getting a husband."

"Boy's Father Is John Smith."

While Miss Jordan was talking her little boy was playing near by. She called him "Frank," which seems a coincidence because Frank Warren is the name of the Kansas City lawyer. This is a coincidence of no importance, however, for the little boy's father's name is John—"John Smith." Miss Jordan said so.

Frank and the Jenkins' little boy, who is a year younger, played together on the floor without introduction. Presently the Jenkins boy crawled upon his dad's lap and traded playful punches. Miss Jordan paused in the pouring of tea and a faint change of expression came into her eyes. Frank alone on the floor. Well, maybe one day he would crawl upon his dad's knee, too.

U. S. ARMY MEN FIND NO NEGROES ON THE RHINE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

COBLENZ, Nov. 28.—Not a single French Negro soldier or laborer has been in occupied Germany since early summer, American army officers here informed THE TRIBUNE today.

The French occupationary forces, numbering 90,000, includes about 20,000 Algerians, Moroccans, and Arabs. The American staff considers that these French colonials are as well behaved as the other troops in the Rhineland.

The last of the Annamites in the French army, mostly laborers, were sent out of Germany months ago.

This report confirms the statement by former Premier Clemenceau, now visiting Chicago, who, in reply to charges by Senator Hitchcock, asserted there were no Negroes in the French army of occupation on the Rhine.

French Ready to Take Ruhr; British Agree

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The French government today began in deadly earnest to make plans for the occupation of the Ruhr district in Germany in January as reprisal for failure to pay reparations.

The war ministry not only is busy with its strategy, but the ministry of public works particularly is drawing up hurriedly plans for the economic exploitation of the Ruhr district mines and the state forests in western Germany. The measure of French control over the steel and chemical industries seems to be undecided.

Mr. Coste, a leading coal mining engineer, attended the important meeting at the presidential mansion yesterday, as well as Gen. Buat, chief of staff, and Marshal Foch.

Deal with London.

The most striking angle of the situation is a report given THE TRIBUNE from high quarters that a French-British accord on reparations and the near east has been worked out specifically to allow the French a free hand in seizing German coal as a guarantee for reparations in exchange for a British free hand in the Mosul fields.

With the beginning of the new year Germany is expected to default, and the French cabinet will be forced to take drastic action to save its own existence as well as attempt to make Germany carry a part of the burden of rebuilding the devastated provinces.

DISMAY IN BERLIN

BY LARRY RUE.
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—[Via Tribune Wireless.]—Confusion approaching consternation reigns in political and financial circles here as a result of Premier Raymond Poincare's statement reported by the Havas News agency that France is contemplating the confiscation of the Rhineland and the occupation of two-thirds of the Ruhr district in reprisal for the failure of Germany to pay reparations. The Saar basin and the national forests also are mentioned as objects of seizure.

Dr. Gothein, former minister of finance, in an article in the Achtuhr Abendblatt, says:

"Fulfillment of the treaty will not only mean ruin of Germany but of France as well."

America, he says, holds the key to the situation through its ability to demand immediate payment of interest on its loans.

All the newspapers agree that the government must do nothing to give a moral right to enforce the sanctions so that when the occupation comes "the world will know that France is not after reparations, but is intent on the ruin of Germany."

ANXIETY IN LONDON

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—The French threat to occupy the Ruhr is causing some anxiety.

This afternoon Prime Minister Bonar Law, answering the question of whether the French occupation of Ruhr was imminent and whether such occupancy would receive the support of the British government, said he had no information that would justify him in saying it was imminent and he obviously could not answer a hypothetical question.

Comte St. Aulaire, the French ambassador, called at 10 Downing street this morning and had a long talk with Mr. Bonar Law. This in itself is an indication of the seriousness of the situation for it marks an almost immediate departure by the premier from his declared policy of leaving foreign affairs to the foreign office.

ANOTHER BURCH JURY DEADLOCK; STOPS FOR NIGHT

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The third jury to try Arthur Burch of Evanston for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy was put to bed tonight after six hours of deliberation—reported deadlocked as were the two preceding juries that tried him.

The report was that seven women were voting for acquittal and four men and one woman were holding out for conviction. It was evident early in the day that the jurors had made up their minds and intended to "stick it out" as long as possible. Most of them had brought their traveling bags. They carried them to the hotel when they went out for dinner.

The jurors must find one of two verdicts if they agree on any. They can find Burch guilty of murder in the first degree or they can find him innocent. They can recommend life imprisonment if they find him guilty. If they do not so recommend the judge must sentence him to be hanged.

"TIGER" WARNS OF NEW PERIL; NO SOFT PEDAL

Georges Clemenceau, "pere de la victoire," again warned the civilized world yesterday of the menace he sees in the Russo-Turko-German pact.

In the fourth of his appeals for American friendship for France, delivered to an enthusiastic audience that packed the Auditorium, he said that in his previous speeches in this country he had not intended to predict another great war immediately, but again he sounded his warning.

"I do not say it's going to be tomorrow, or when it will be," he said, "but when there is an alliance made between the barbarian, the anarchist, and the German militarist, haven't we the right to believe that it is not in the interests of peace?"

And again, a little later, he charged that the alliance he pointed out is "preparing for—let us not call it war, if you don't want to—but let us call it interference in middle Europe."

Modifies His War Tone.

To this extent, observers of the Tiger's American tour believe, he was willing to accept the advice of some of his friends, including Col. House, to modify the warlike nature of his speeches. He said that he would make no "compromise for the sake of expediency," and on other points he refused to give ground.

As an example, he struck back with full force at critics who charged that he had exaggerated the seriousness of the arms situation in Germany. He read a formal document reciting some of the stores of war unearthed by the interallied control commission—"enough to equip two army corps"—which he issued as a special statement to the press. In diplomatic terms he passed the lie back to his critics.

Tiger Fails to Show Fangs.

In spite of this firmness in maintaining his position in the face of opposition, many of the audience were disappointed in the former premier's peaceful attitude. They had hoped the Tiger would show his fangs and roar and the doors were thrown wide open for that kind of a performance by the speakers who preceded him.

As chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, under whose auspices the meeting was held, Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, had assailed the present aloofness of the United States toward her former allies as a "second great glacial period" that had overcome the true popular sentiment.

Rousing cheers greeted his assertion that the foundations of real peace could not be laid "until Germany knows absolutely that, if she unjustly assails France, England and the United States will rush to her defense."

And Charles G. Dawes, of "Hell Maria" fame, had come mighty close to using that or stronger language as, speaking directly to M. Clemenceau at the top of his voice and with clenched fists outstretched, he condemned "political trimming and whippersnapping," which he said was prevalent here and in other countries, too.

"We want the man who believes what he says and says what he thinks!" the former brigadier general shouted, and the crowd cheered him.

In fact everything, from the Chicago band's playing of "Over There," as M. Clemenceau entered, and then the "Marseilles" and the American national anthem seemed to bring the audience back to the warmth of wartime fervor. It was ready to shout its head off for France and Clemenceau.

And then the Tiger, with only the tips of his claws glimpsed for a fraction of a second now and then, addressed the excited throng as an advocate might address the jury. It was reason and logic that he sought to use, not sentiment or passion. He endeavored to speak simply. At times it seemed to those who have watched him on other occasions that he was holding himself back.

Audience Can't Hear Him.

This plan of his of speaking quietly disappointed the audience, but they were even more disappointed that he could not and would not adjust himself to speaking from a position where his voice would have been picked up by electric amplifiers intended to carry it throughout the big theater.

In the first place he objected to speaking from behind a small pulpit-like reading table that had been arranged on the stage. He wanted to come out squarely before the audience. A small table was substituted. This dropped the amplifier transmitters far below his lips, and in addition he was constantly walking out beside the table. The result was that the audience missed much of what he said. Three times he was interrupted and prompted to speak from a better position, and this was thought to have broken his thread of thought.

Gives Analytical Argument.

His argument was analytical of himself and his reasons for coming to America; it was a picking to pieces of objections that have been made to his previous speeches in this country. It was an adaptation of himself to the circumstances under which he found himself at the moment, and with the exception of his statement concerning Germany's secret armaments and some budget and taxation figures he read from some roughly creased note paper, it was extemporaneous.

He had been stirred by the speeches of former Secretary Dickinson and Gen. Dawes. When the latter spoke of M. Clemenceau's praise of American troops he had snapped out " It was the truth," and his eyes gleamed.

But when he arose, his frock coat dropping loosely from his square but bent old shoulders, and with one of his gray gloved hands behind him began to deprecate the compliments paid to him, he spoke as though he were arguing with a small group instead of a huge throng.

Strong Ties to U. S.

He said he had refused to believe that the ties of friendship between France and the United States could be broken, that he had come here as a man of peace, that the great war had been brewing for many years, that it was not of France's making, that it had left France penniless and devastated, and that she was entitled to the reparations fixed in the treaty of Versailles.

He charged that Germany in her efforts to evade her responsibilities had bankrupted herself intentionally to keep from paying France; that the average tax in Germany is only $14 in contrast to an average of $45 in France. He denied again and again and at length that France is militaristic.

" My message is peace," he said. " I hate war. But we must make peace and peace always is harder than war.

" I want peace and that is the deep feeling of every Frenchman."

CLEMENCEAU'S SPEECH

M. Clemenceau's speech was in part as follows:

" Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen: I feel quite confused because of the encomiums that have been heaped upon me by the gentlemen preceding me.

" I know that America has done her duty. I know very well in America that all you were working. So were all the French I am sure, and all of the people of the allied countries.

" With regard to what Gen. Dawes has said, I don't care very much about being a martyr. It simply shows that people do not always know the ins and outs, weak and strong points of those they speak about. With what Gen. Dawes said, 'Whether you convince us or not, we admire you.' I was not pleased at all.

" Why I really came I cannot say; I do not know. But I can say I came to do something which I think has not been done before and which I cannot do with anybody else but the American people.

Refers to Close Ties.

" I have been here before. I knew you too well, I have seen too much of you, not to feel there were between us ties of friendship that could not be broken.

" In the course of events it is natural that people should once in a while, more or less, have a misunderstanding, but if I had not had the idea that America was bound so closely to France I would not be here now.

" Now, preliminaries having been dealt with, I must come down to the subject. A few days ago I was in New York, where I did myself the honor of visiting the tomb of your Gen. Grant. I saw carved in the stone there the words, 'Let us have peace.' I thought at once, 'That is the reason I am here.' I want peace. I want peace to be established among men for as long a time as may be. That is what I am preaching; reproving some actions, approving others; but all with the one thought, 'Let us have peace.'

" When I came to these United States your great civil war was just over. At that time I had the honor to be introduced to Gen. Grant himself. He made no revelations to me.

Message from Grant's Tomb.

" So I bring you the message from his tomb today: 'Let us have peace.' Listening to Gen. Dawes a moment ago, I thought, 'It is a great pity that war is so cruel; that it brings with it bloodshed and things we hardly dare think of now.'

" But that is done. The war is over. Peace has arisen. It is now our mission to reason with and convince others. That is our great problem. We must approach autocratic power, in some way or other, and convince that power that it should get behind our cause. When that is done the whole world will follow. Take men one by one, if need be, and discuss these questions. Answer criticism; satisfy argument; overcome objection.

" Let us reason with each other, discuss with each other, even curse each other, if that be necessary, but, step by step, through unceasing efforts, let us strive to achieve that which moves the world—truth, justice, liberty and right.

Different Results of War.

" My friends, we have had a war, the greatest in the world, the most cruel, the one that has most cursed mankind, wherein blood and gold flowed in torrents; as a world never fought before.

" England, France, and America entered the war, but the results were different with each. We were invaded for four years; our crops were destroyed, devastated. All that could be done by savages was accomplished. We were deprived of the most important parts of our territory. England did not have to submit to any such interference by Germany, nor did Italy.

" I have here a few figures to show what was the situation of France. Out of 8,500,000 men mobilized in France we lost 5,250,000 dead, injured, and wounded, which was divided as follows: 1,400,000 dead, 500,000 mutilated, 3,000,000 wounded, 500,000 who came back diseased or afflicted.

Applies Figures to U. S.

" I think these figures throw some light upon the situation. Do you know what they would mean if applied to America—what your losses would have been? There would have been 4,000,000 dead instead of 52,000. You would have had 10,000,000 wounded instead of 206,000. All your coal mines and manufacturing from Washington to Pittsburgh would have been destroyed.

" Of course, you did not have so many dead as you would have had if you had been able to interfere sooner, but there is no reproach to be passed upon you for that. We had hoped and hoped and at last you came, and the day it was known that America was on the field of battle the fate of the war was decided.

Summarizes Losses.

" And now that the war is over we come to the accounting. What has been the devastation? Four thousand cities and villages destroyed, and destroyed in such a way that it was like the floor of this stage. You could not see where a tree or a house had been; 4,000 cities and villages; 600,000 houses, churches, schools, 20,000 manufactories.

" Don't you think there is tragedy in those figures? Can't you realize what our feelings were when we were promised, under the signatures of France, England, and America, that this would be repaid and was not?

" We hear every day that we want to crush Germany. No, indeed. We do not want to crush the man who owes us money. You may think we ask for too much. You will see in a moment what that means.

Cites Rise in Budget.

" Our budget has risen from four and one-half billions to twenty-five. Our budget deficiency is four billions. On the repairing of damages Germany ought to have paid us, but she has not. We would have no deficit at all if Germany had paid us. We have paid out ninety billions for reparations that Germany should have paid but she had not. How much have we received from her? Two billions.

" Finally let me call your attention to one more significant figure. The German taxpayer now pays $14; the French taxpayer $45. And they say that the Germans must have their taxes so as to be able to go on.

" The German budget—shall I say a word of it?—the German budget has a deficit of fourteen billions. It is very easy to waste money when you don't have to pay. They have many thousands of men on the railways now that they did not have before the war.

" Germany—I must pay her that tribute—has the power of reaction which I cannot but admire. She did not say that some day she would not pay us. She only undertook to put herself in such a financial condition that she could not. That has created a very bad feeling in France. And is it not natural that France should resent that?

Find Arms in Germany.

" I have said, on very good authority—and in this I have been criticised—that almost every day in Germany we find guns, machine guns, guns of every description. I have quoted two or three authorities on that, and I have been told that that was a lie. I did not know I was lying, but if it is necessary I will bring my informants, all honorable gentlemen, to bear witness, and we will then know who is speaking the truth.

" The Germans have been getting this large amount of armament, don't you think, for the purpose of destroying us? It certainly is not for any peaceful operation. Go through the schools of Germany and you will find that they are teaching hatred of the French. Go to our schools and colleges and universities and you will not find one man who would not consider it something undignified and not to the interest of his own people to preach hatred toward Germany.

Treaty with Russia.

" As you know, Germany has made a treaty with Russia. The German officers are well equipped to drill and drill the inexperienced Russian soldier, and there is an arrangement with the Krupp manufacturer to transfer his activities from Germany to Russia for the fabrication of armaments. All the military organizations of Germany still exist, every one of them, and are we not right in fearing aggression which the provisions of the treaty would have made to disappear?

" Some people tell me that I am predicting war in a short time. No such thing. Consider, however, the Germans and the Turks and the Russians—you will remember that the Turks and Germans fought together in the war and have we not the right to fear at some time or other we may have to submit to the force of some such aggression?

" I do not say that this is going to be tomorrow or when it will be, but when there is an alliance made between the barbarian and the anarchist and the German militarist, haven't we the right to believe that this is not in the interests of peace? That is our case, and I say no more.

" I am not saying that this is coming tomorrow or when it is coming, but I am simply warning you. I think that when we catch in the act Germans hiding arms, and secretly violating the treaty by securing artillery and guns in Russia, you will understand our feeling. They are to be used, how? Why, against us. There cannot be anybody else. We are therefor justified in keeping our army in good condition.

END OF WAR VISION

" I wish I could explain the situation to you in a befitting way, because you went to Europe inspired by the great words that you were going to make the world safe for democracy. But when you announced that you could stop war by means of an organization which I shall not discuss now, all hopes were raised, not only in France, but elsewhere.

" I must be candid and tell you I had my doubts. But these poor people who had been trampled upon for centuries thought the great day had come. They came to us, and they were listened to. They told us matters straight. Some of them told us dreadful things, and we all rushed to do the best we could for them. And all that was done without any arrangement among us as to what we could do, and what America could do, because America went away.

Had Right to Go Away.

" That is the fact. She had the right to go away. I have not come here to blame you, or to approve you. It is not for me to interfere in your own business. But I do not think you were quite right to go without telling us, without giving us a fair chance to see if new arrangements could not be made. I am sure they could have been made, and they would have been made very easily because in reality the things we were fighting over were words, and we did not care for words. We wanted the facts.

From Economic Viewpoint.

" But that was done. You left us a second time. What was the prospect of economic solidarity after the war? You know the condition of the great markets of Germany and Russia. We were told that all credits would be suppressed. If banks are interested in an enterprise, and they want to kill it, that is what they say, 'tomorrow we will have no money.'

" Now, money had been borrowed by us. What for? To buy American goods, which we needed for the war. That money has been spent in America. Do you ask, could we not depend upon our mills? Why, our production is gone. We have lost it. We not only lost our man power, but we also lost our manufacturing power. They were destroyed. We could produce nothing.

Still No Reproach.

" And then you left. But we did not complain, although we thought you left rather soon. We do not press any reproach upon you. We thought you wanted to get back to your liberty of action, to your economic freedom. That was natural enough. But I say again that a little discussion about arrangements that might have been made would have made things much better, and perhaps at this time we should not owe you as much money as we do now.

" It may be that some time you will have to come again, in such form as you deem proper. I do not know. But I want to tell you the French feeling about it.

" And what of the treaty? We have something which is not peace and which is not war. I do not know which is the best, the pangs of restoration, or the fourteen points of President Wilson.

" When it came to the treaty we said, 'If these conditions are not insured there will be nothing left but to go to war again.' They were not insured, and to this day we have not obtained what we were promised over the signature of three countries.

Reverts to Triple Treaty.

" Bad feelings, you know, endure. When there is good feeling in human affairs things may be settled, but when there is bad feeling things are not settled. There is always a possible threat. There is always something about bad feeling that attracts bad feeling, and that is just what happened before your eyes in the alliance of Germany, Turkey, and Russia.

" So we come to this point, that we have the sort of treaty I have told you of, that the war was waged to obtain a certain kind of peace; that peace was obtained, but it was not put into execution, and nobody can tell whether it will remain or not. And those who are interested in not bringing about the execution of that peace—the Russians, who made the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, which was treason against France; and the Turks, who prolonged this war by at least two years, who were with the Germans our worst foes—are preparing for—let us not call it war if you do not want to, but let us call it interference in middle Europe.

What America Fought For.

" You had your soldiers killed. You spent your money lavishly. You did that to get something. Now, if you have not gotten it, may I ask you what you did it for?

" I have been asked what I wished, and I have simply said, 'Let the dead bury the dead.' Let us not speak any more of that. Let us take the situation as it is. But there remains in spite of everything the feeling that America has not gone. That she has not left without any possibility of return, if that ever be necessary. When I speak to you in this way of entering into European affairs, I express the feeling of every Frenchman, with no exception.

" Now, I did not expect that a society of nations could change the world. I did not expect a society of nations could put an end to war. Maybe some organization of the kind will accomplish this some day. I should be glad to see it established. But for the present, not being too ambitious for myself or my fellow man, I should be glad to simply make a good beginning, and settle the things that need to be settled, and that can be settled."

DICKINSON'S REMARKS

Ex-Judge Dickinson, temporary chairman, introduced Gen. Dawes, in a short speech in part as follows:

" The honor of this occasion has come to the Council on Foreign Relations because it is a forum dedicated to free discussion of our international affairs.

" Up to this time no restraint has ever been imposed on our speakers. We are not senators who, imbued with an overpowering sense of official dignity and prerogative, resent discussion by a foreigner of what may come within the circle of the treaty making power. Americans were not shocked by the Tiger's scream when, with undaunted courage, he strode up and down the French battle front animating his soldiers to superhuman effort.

" To us, Mr. Clemenceau, our brother in arms in a glorious war in which our freedom and civilization were imperiled, you can freely open your mind and heart.

Germany's Power Grows.

" Then again will we know what that war was fought for, realize that victory has only been partially achieved, that France is now, and will continue to be, our first line of defense if imperialistic Germany shall again assail civilization; that France is bled white; that uninvaded Germany is stronger and more populous, and that this discrepancy is daily increasing: that France, standing alone to meet the vengeance of Germany, cannot demobilize and freely divert her resources from arms to industry and the payment of debts, and finally, that the peace party in Germany cannot subdue imperialism and establish the foundations for peace until Germany knows absolutely that if she unjustly assails France, England and the United States will rush to her defense.

" While I have no authority to speak for the Council on Foreign Relations I say for myself and, I believe, for many here, that it will be the highest wisdom for the United States to engage with Great Britain to protect France against unjust German assault.

" I hope that Mr. Clemenceau will receive such assurance in Chicago and elsewhere.

" Among those who left everything and devoted themselves without reservation to the defense of their country, and by their example and services helped to ennoble America, was our distinguished citizen, Gen. Charles G. Dawes."

TIGER WILL LISTEN TO OTHER "STARS" AT OPERA TONIGHT

M. Clemenceau expressed a desire, following his address at the Auditorium yesterday, to return there again this evening, not as an " actor," but as a spectator and listener at the presentation of the " Snow Maiden " by the Chicago Civic Opera company.

The Tiger expressed himself as greatly pleased with the audience, which he described as one of the " most attentive, intelligent, and appreciative " which he has addressed so far on his American tour. No other engagement has been arranged for him today with the exception of a possible tour of the boulevard system.

" But even that is indefinite," said Col. Stephen Bonsal. " It all depends on the weather and his mood."

That Clemenceau was not tired by his speech was evidenced by the fact that, following his return to the Palmer mansion, he did not go to his room for his supper of eggs, but dressed for dinner with his host and hostess.

" Sometimes, you see," said Col. Bonsal, " he finds excuses for stretching his bedtime hour to 9, or even a little later."

Clemenceau will spend another night in Chicago, leaving for Springfield tomorrow morning to lay a wreath on Lincoln's tomb. From there he will go to St. Louis, where he speaks tomorrow night. He will then go on to Washington, D. C.

Clemenceau Charges 45 War Depots Found in Germany

In the course of his speech yesterday M. Clemenceau referred to a list of forty-five violations by Germany of the disarmament provision of the Versailles treaty and announced that he would turn over to the press a complete statement covering the matter. Summarized, the statement follows:

In July, 1921, machine guns, rifles, and cartridges were found in Frankfort-on-Main; a million cartridges at Frankfort-on-the Oder.

In September, 1921, telephone and telegraph war material at Kalhrof, East Prussia, and rifle stocks, barrels, and anti-tank rifles at the Mauser factory in Oberndorf.

In October, a Potsdam restaurant was found to house bomb throwers and three field guns, and in the house of a government forester at Postincken, in East Prussia barrels of .77 centimeter field guns were located.

Five important finds, according to the statement, were made in November, 1921. These included 236 cases of magazine clips for automatic pistols at Potsdam; machine guns and 30,000 cartridges at Bueseldorp; 250 boxes of magazine clips and 33 cases of machine gun ammunition at the barracks of the First Uhlans at Potsdam, and 150 barrels of .105 caliber field guns at Rockstroh factory at Heidenau, Saxony.

Among other important discoveries listed in M. Clemenceau's statement were 9,000 sporting rifles adapted to war use in Munich; rifles, pistols, machine gun calssions, gas masks and supports for anti-aircraft guns, together with 92,000 rifle cartridges at Swinemude; rifles, machine guns, revolvers and bayonets at Kaiserstnitz.

Other big finds of war materials were made at Eiskeller, Namslau, on a farm in Bavaria; stores in Berlin, at Krampints, along the Silesian frontier, at Febach in Bavaria; at Berlin-Schmargendorf, on a farm near Gottkau, at Gross-Iemkwitz, in Silesia, at Kummersdorf, in Berlin barracks, in airdromes in Breig, at the Moabit railway station in Berlin, in police barracks in Stuttgart, at Stettin, at Niesse, in a fortress of Glogau, at Ellenstein, at Leipsig and at Keil.

Need Fewer Politicians, More Men Like Tiger, Dawes Asserts

Gen. Dawes was roundly applauded when he drew attention to the friendship of America and France and introduced M. Clemenceau. He said in part (addressing M. Clemenceau): " I want to say to you, sir, for this audience—and they are very representative of the American people—that whether we agree with you or whether we disagree with you, we admire you for your courage and for your sincerity.

" In these days of political trimming, when our politicians want to discuss only those facts which please us, regardless of facts which may reveal to us knowledge which will displease us, we want the man who believes what he says and says what he thinks.

The Politician's Way.

" What is the trouble all over the world in the discussion of these great international questions? It is because the politicians of the times want to discuss those things which please their people, and those things only; and that is the reason why, in international discussions, the position of nations is so often like the position of children.

" In the discussion of these things in America by the politicians; it is not fashionable to say anything in praise of our great and glorious ally, England, for fear that we will offend the pro-Irish voters. It is not fashionable to say anything to the credit of our great and glorious ally, France, for fear it will offend the pro-German voters.

" But I want to say that 1917, that summer of martyrdom of the flower of its youth, that summer when the fate of civilization hung in the balance for the first time and when the pollu heard that Clemenceau was again at the head of the government, he who had been discouraged and believed that his government had gone back on him, received new courage and the soul of France was again joined to the body of France and that great army side by side with our own magnificent army and the great army of Great Britain and the men of Italy went forward to that victory which shall not be lost by the action of the political trimmers of the world.

Facts About the Armies.

" You have said some generous things about the American army. It is the truth. Let me tell you the truth which is in the mind of the American people about the French army. We had of American troops in the battle line at the declaration of the armistice 1,070,000 men. At that time France had buried 1,300,000 men. The casualty of France, including that 1,300,000 men, the flower of their youth, equalled the entire mobilized strength of the American army in France and the United States, and you need not fear that America or the world with that knowledge, with the knowledge that France had been invaded every fifty years for 1,500 years, will regard your claim of the right of self-protection as a demand for empire."

FEMALE FASCISTI GUIDE TIERNAN'S DOMESTIC STEPS

Mrs. Pulaski Assumes Role of a Dictator.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—If Augusta H. Tiernan didn't have a sister she wouldn't have a husband.

Mrs. Frances Pulaski of Franklin Park, Chicago, sister to Prof. John P. Tiernan's first, latest, and perhaps last wife, came to the Tiernan home "to preach," remained to fight, and ended up by uniting her sister and brother-in-law.

Petticoat lane is the feminine setting for Tiernan's newly oriented location, in which he is to walk the straight and slim path, with a woman in front of him, a woman beside him, and a woman back of him.

In front of the professor, who pens legal treatises and amorous epistles with equal facility, is Mrs. Mathilde Jones, a neighbor, who stands as the buffer state between Tiernan and the world.

Bigamy Her Big Stick.

Back of him is Mrs. Pulaski, frightening the lawyer with her legal threats as she urges him to keep away from Iowa and his bride of one day, Mrs. Blanche Brimmer-Tiernan. When necessary she brings the professor's thoughts back from Hansell, Ia., to 1021 Diamond avenue, South Bend, via jail cell, to which she refers casually as she mentions that she might secure a warrant for her brother-in-law's arrest on charges of bigamy.

She makes it plain to Gussie's husband that the paths away from Petticoat lane pass the county jail.

She remains close by his side even when he answers the telephone. Thanks to the vigilance of Mrs. Pulaski, the telephone is the only method of communication with the outside world, even Iowa.

Three times during a two and one-half minutes conversation with the protestor, Mrs. Tiernan jostles the receiver and shouts, "Come away from that phone. Don't say anything more." And three times the subdued voice of the pedagogue pleads, "But I want to say something."

Blanche Out of His Life.

He declares that the reconciliation is complete, that Blanche Brimmer-Tiernan is out of his life today, in spite of the fact that back in Iowa, Blanche, aided by her mother, insists she intends to claim "John as my legal husband."

"She will have to establish that in the Indiana courts," comments Tiernan. He has taken the position that Judge Chester R. Montgomery's revocation of his divorce decree from Gussie has nullified his marriage to Blanche.

"The house is not sold," he continues, "but we expect that it will be disposed of within twenty-four hours. Friday comes the sale of furniture, and then we shall all go to Chicago."

Meets Court Officer.

Mrs. Pulaski, the militant arbitrator who put the lid on the crater of the Tiernan volcano, had a conference this morning with W. E. Miller, Juvenile court officer representing Mrs. Tiernan in the rehearing of the divorce case set for Dec. 11. He commended her plan that silence is golden. Perfectly legal and common sense. He advised her to have her relatives forget the past.

"But it's more important," he added, "that they forget to mention the past. Let her say 'Blanche' or let him whisper 'Poulin' and the thing will start all over again."

Dismissal of Tiernan's cross bill for divorce was postponed, when Mrs. Pulaski, continuing to act as prime minister in his castle, refused to allow him to leave the house to keep a 9 o'clock appointment with his attorney, George Rinda. The attorney was unable to come to the Tiernan home, and consequently his instructions to dismiss the bill will not be received until tomorrow, when he will be allowed to call on his client.

John Tiernan is cowed by the hair-pin triumvirate in his own home, but he continues to be a focal point for outside interests. Today he received an offer to go on a lecture tour, speaking on the psychology of women and the intricacies of matrimony.

Another overture came from Walter Dean of Chicago, offering the simultaneous husband of two women the vice presidency of the "Brothers Under the Skin" organization, at a salary of his own naming. It would be his duty to recruit new members to join the 60,000 Benedicks who have already banded together for "protection from nagging wives, and men who are determined to rule their own homes."

Both offers have been referred to the league of women voters now residing in the professor's home.

Baby's First Birthday.

Baby Billy, the exhibit A of the Tiernan-Poulin paternity case, today celebrated his first birthday. There was no birthday party. The infant's only guest was the family doctor summoned when Billy began to suffer from a severe earache. So vigilant is Mrs. Pulaski's protective tactics that the doctor gained admittance only after he had produced all his credentials and proved he was a medical man.

Instead of a birthday cake with candles, the "paternity child" saw his mother and father busy ticketing the furniture for the public sale Friday, when curious townspeople will come in to see the library table on which the professor wrote his "conflict of laws."

Perhaps, in the sale, will be a stack of the books, with marked passages in chapter 8, the section on "marriage." There is an underline on page 83, where the author states "the validity of marriage is governed by the laws of the state where it is celebrated. If it is valid there, it is valid in all states under the rules of comity. But," the legal expert adds, "as an exception, such a marriage will not be recognized if it violates public policy."

And as he sits and muses, with Mathilde, Gussie and Frances grouped about him, Mrs. Pulaski, although she holds no law decree, is explaining to him the exact meaning of "a violation of public policy."

Blanche's Faith Wavers.

Marshalltown, Ia., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Wavering!

That is the condition to which Mrs. Blanche Brimmer-Tiernan's faith in Prof. John P. Tiernan, her husband for a day, has been reduced tonight. The causes of this, Mrs. Brimmer-Tiernan admits, is a report of a complete reconciliation in the household at South Bend, Ind.

"THE TIGER" AS HE APPEARS TO CARTOONIST

BRITISH RECEIVE YANKEE RADIOS ON 275 METERS

LONDON, Nov. 28.—[United News.]—One-fourth of a second after C. B. Gurman, an amateur wireless operator of Cleveland, O., chatting with a friend "in the air, said that "he would call later," the message was picked up in London. Mr. Gurman was on the low wave length of 275 meters.

The great success of amateur operators in sending signals on low wave lengths that would reach Europe during the first trans-Atlantic tests a year ago, have been repeated and now, during the days when the second tests are on, British amateurs hear almost nightly the signals of their American brothers and sisters.

Just two night ago they heard R. H. Bloom [ICMK] of Holyoke, Mass., call "CQ," which is a general call, and immediately following came a message from T. S. Kletcha [IXU] of Stockbridge, Mass., saying: "Have you anything for me tonight?"

The Britishers did not catch whom he was calling and so they do not know whether he obtained what he wanted—but they, 3,000 miles away, heard him ask the question:

And then R. S. Johnson (AWL), Redbank, N. J., called R. E. Hanrick (5LV) of Waco, Tex., and J. Fairhall Jr. (9ZY) of Danville, Ill.

Others heard included A. Clucas of Toledo, O.; J. E. Page (8AQO) of Cazenovia, N. Y., calling H. H. Barnes (5MS) of Houston, Tex.; D. F. Wood (9LG) of Jerseyville, Ill.; the message of Page said:

FOUR ARRESTED; WAR OPENED ON FAKE REALTORS

War on unlicensed real estate dealers was declared yesterday by the state department of registration and education following the arrest of three men and a woman, directors and salesmen for the Active Realty company, by John W. Follmer, investigator for the department.

Those taken into custody, Harry Finegold and Otto Blaha, directors, and Herman Liebreng and Mrs. E. Martin, agents for the company, which had offices in the State and Lake building, will be arraigned this morning before Judge Heap. Formal charges of operating without a license will be placed against them.

The arrests yesterday are only the first of many, according to Max Murdock, assistant director of the department. It has come to the department's attention that the law is being violated by many so-called real estate agents, and many complaints of unethical methods have been received.

Investigators are scrutinizing the activities of John H. Gelhardt, who is already under indictment for fraud in connection with a real estate home building scheme, in the report that he is behind the present project.

The program of the Active Realty company, appealing to the worker of small means, resembles closely that of Gelhardt, said Mr. Murdock. A bungalow and lot on easy terms was the bait, but the complainants say that after they had signed contracts and paid part of the purchase price they found that their contracts called only for a lot.

SOUTH FLAMES INTO FILIBUSTER ON LYNCHING BILL

And Republican Senators Stand Pat After Caucus.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Denouncing the Dyer anti-lynching bill as proposing the most daring and destructive invasion of state rights in history, southern Democratic senators set out today to kill the measure, even if it should be necessary to halt the entire legislative machinery indefinitely.

The bill passed by the house empowering the federal government to intervene to punish lynchers and local governments which fail to enforce the law against lynchers was termed a "force" bill and unconstitutional by its bitter southern opponents.

Senator Underwood (Ala.), their leader, bluntly served notice that all business of every character, including even confirmation of presidential nominations, would be blocked until the effort to pass the Dyer bill should be abandoned.

G. O. P. Caucus Decides to Stick.

This threat was carried out so effectively that Republican senators held a caucus late in the day to devise ways and means of combating the filibuster, and after a protracted debate behind closed doors decided to continue the fight for the Dyer bill, even to the extent of forcing the senate to remain in session on Thanksgiving day if necessary to wear down the filibusters.

The Democrats were confident of their ability to create a complete legislative jam and hold up the Dyer bill, at least until the next congress, in which they have no fear of the measure. They declared that they had not begun to uncover the resources at their command in today's proceedings and that they would be ready to resume the filibuster tomorrow with no end of legislative tricks up their sleeves.

The senate has never witnessed a better organized and executed filibuster. Nor has it ever before seen a filibuster in which the filibusters openly and frankly avowed that they were filibustering.

This Is a Real Filibuster.

"We're not disguising our purposes," said Senator Underwood. "This is a force bill pure and simple. We stand for law and order and we don't believe in mob rule, but this measure threatens the very fabric of our government. It's not going to be passed; it is an impossible proposition. You are not going to do any more business until we get an understanding that this bill won't be pressed.

"Although there are many important nominations before the senate, there will be no confirmations. You do not have to take the responsibility for killing this measure. We are willing to take the responsibility and we are going to."

Senator Edge (N. J.), Republican, demanded that the senate be given an opportunity to vote upon the measure. He succeeded only in bringing down upon himself the wrath of Democrats. Senator McKellar (Tenn.) wanted to know whether the bill would enable the federal government to punish the guilty persons in the Hall-Mills murder case. Mr. McKellar charged that there had been a breakdown of justice in that case and that nine-tenths of the people of the United States could put their finger on the murderer.

M. CLEMENCEAU TO ADDRESS BIG FARM MEETING

Georges Clemenceau rearranged his itinerary yesterday in order to accept an invitation to address the opening session of the fourth annual convention of the American Farm Bureau federation in Chicago Dec. 11. France's war premier, in speaking before delegates of the largest body of organized farmers in the world—the Federal Farm bureau—will discuss "The Farmer as a World Citizen."

GREGORY QUITS TONIGHT AS DRY CHIEF FOR STATE

Charles A. Gregory, for the last year prohibition director for Illinois, relinquishes the position tonight. He will continue as disbursing officer of the internal revenue office, in charge of prohibition pay rolls, until current accounts are settled, and will leave Dec 5 for Washington with the Illinois waterways commission, where, as a member of the Illinois legislature, he will participate in a conference beginning the latter part of next week.

Resignation of Guy W. Ginders, chief field agent during Mr. Gregory's régime, also came yesterday, but upon request of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, he agreed to continue until Jan. 1.

According to information from Washington, Roscoe Andrews, for the last six weeks legal adviser to the prohibition director, will be named today as acting director to act until Mr. Gregory's successor is named. Until his recent appointment as legal adviser Mr. Andrews had been an assistant United States district attorney.

The society resolved to place its constitution and aims before President Obregon and offer to support the government in the development and rehabilitation of the country.

HOUSE PLIES AX ON SUBSIDY; MAY BE PASSED TODAY

New Amendments Alter Features of Bill.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Further concessions were made by the administration leaders to critics of the ship subsidy bill today, and as a result the passage of the measure in the house tomorrow seems assured. The majority, however, is not likely to be much greater than thirty.

Amendments adopted today included the following:

An amendment by Representative Madden [Ill.] providing that expenditures shall not be made from the merchant marine fund except out of annual appropriations instead of from a permanent appropriation for a ten year period.

Put on Rum Restriction.

An amendment by Representative Edmonds [Pa.] providing that compensation shall not be paid to a vessel for a voyage during which liquor has been transported or sold with the knowledge or consent of the owner, agent, or master.

An amendment by Representative Edmonds providing for a deduction from compensation to vessels proportionate to revenue attributable to the carriage of cargo owned by the owner of the vessel; this amendment being designed to eliminate the so-called industrial ships such as owned by the Standard Oil company, from the benefits of the subsidy.

An amendment by Representative Graham [Ill.], eliminating a provision which made the amount of compensation not subject to review by the general accounting office.

To Study Freight Terminals.

An amendment by Representative Dempsey [N. Y.], directing a joint board created by the shipping board and interstate commerce commission to study questions relating to the control and improvement of ocean freight terminals.

The amendment was offered by Representative Madden, chairman of the appropriations committee, after conferences with the Republican leaders who apparently were fearful that the Democrats otherwise might succeed in eliminating the section creating the merchant marine fund.

'YOU DIRTY DOGS!' OUSTS MR. JONES FROM COMMONS

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—The new session of parliament is keeping its promise of liveliness, and this expected liveliness is coming from the Labor benches. Jack Jones, Labor member of parliament from Silvertown, a poor district of London, was today ordered by the speaker to leave the house for interrupting members of the government.

James Tryon, minister of pensions, replying to a question, said that he did not think it possible to transfer mentally afflicted ex-service men from poor law institutions to better quarters, and he also had found that many of these men had been insane before they enlisted and should not have been enlisted at all.

Irreverent Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones shouted, "O, you dirty dogs!"

Shouts for order came from all over the house, while Mr. Jones kept shouting, "I don't care a damn!"

The speaker ordered Mr. Jones to withdraw, and as he went out he shouted, "You dirty dogs, slobbering over dead soldiers and starving women!"

Lady Astor also created a minor scene when a question was asked about the rules of decency in Hyde Park under which Sir Almeric Fitzroy recently was prosecuted. Lady Astor interjected that thousands of women were convicted yearly on the unsupported word of the police, but as soon as one man was arrested there was a row.

Heckled Again by Labor.

Mr. Bonar Law again was severely heckled by the Laborites in commons tonight. After the consequential provisions bill was passed through the committee stage successfully Mr. Landsbury, a Laborite, on a motion for adjournment raised the question of the unemployed hunger marchers and the prime minister's refusal to receive a deputation from them.

Speaking evidently with great conviction and sincerity, Mr. Landsbury urged Mr. Bonar Law to reconsider his decision, which was believed even by many Conservatives to be a tactical mistake.

One Dead of Pneumonia.

Mr. Landsbury said that the marchers had come to London for sympathy, and they had shown since their arrival that they did not intend to resort to violent tactics. But the prime minister had turned a deaf ear to their request. One marcher, said Mr. Landsbury, had died since his arrival in London from pneumonia contracted through sleeping in the open. Others are ill, he said, and their deaths are feared.

Mr. Bonar Law himself replied, asserting that he had taken his action on grounds of consistency, saying if he changed his attitude now and received a deputation, the communists would have an opportunity of asserting that they had successfully coerced the government into according them their demands.

Railroads Meet Bonar Law.

The chiefs of all the great railways met Prime Minister Arthur Bonar Law at 10 Downing street and discussed with him plans for the immediate relief of unemployment. The prime minister invited the coöperation of the railroad chiefs, urging them to anticipate construction of capital works, repairs, and replacement wherever possible. It is understood that he promised government support for necessary loans.

DU PAGE COUNTY VOTES TODAY ON HIGHWAY BONDS

Efforts are being made by property owners throughout Du Page county to poll a heavy vote today at a special election to approve a $1,350,000 bond issue for the construction of 145 miles of paved roads. Traffic has become so heavy upon Roosevelt road, the main paved highway linking Chicago with the Fox river valley, that the construction of other arteries of travel has become imperative.

A comprehensive road program has been mapped out whereby all the main arteries linking Du Page county with Cook, Will, and Lake counties will be paved as well as a number of north and south highways connecting Downers Grove and Naperville with the county seat, Wheaton, and points north in Wayne township.

"These roads, which are badly needed, will materially increase the value of stock, dairy and grain farms in this county," said E. N. Hurley of Wheaton. "Real estate values everywhere in the county are bound to increase.

"This always has been the case with a farming community closely associated with a big center such as Cook county and Chicago. There is practically no sentiment against the bond issue and it is assured of success if the voters will only turn out at the polls."

The bond issue will be made under section D of the state law under which the state pays half of the cost of the road construction after the electorate has approved the issue.

JOHN G. SHEDD DENIES RUMOR OF RETIREMENT

Reports that John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field and company, was about to retire from the company were denied by Mr. Shedd last night with the statement that, "I'm not ready yet to give up business."

Mr. Shedd said there had been some discussion among the directors of the company as to his retirement from the presidency to become chairman of the board of directors. This question, he said, is still under discussion and may not yet be settled for some time.

James Simpson, vice president of the company, is being considered as a successor to Mr. Shedd if he decides to resign the presidency. "But I'm not going to leave Field's or retire from business for a good while yet," declared Mr. Shedd. "I'll let you know when I am."

Instant Quaker Oats

The Quick Style

The quickest-cooking oats in the world

Now your grocer has Instant Quaker Oats, as well as the regular Quaker.

The Instant cooks in a hurry. It cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes.

Thin flakes, partly cooked

In flavor and quality the two styles are identical. Both are flaked from queen grains only—just the rich, plump, flavory oats.

We get but ten pounds of Quaker Oats from a bushel. And that super-flavor has made this brand the leading oat dish the world over.

But in Instant Quaker the oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and are partly cooked.

So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And those small, thin flakes cook quickly.

Now Quaker Oats offers you two great advantages. It offers you flavor which no other oats can match. And it offers, if you wish, the only oats that cook in from 3 to 5 minutes.

For one or both of these reasons you want Quaker Oats. Be sure that you get it, and get the style you want.

JUDGE RIGHEIMER ELECTED SCHOOL BOARD ATTORNEY

Given Bither's Job at $10,000 a Year.

County Judge Frank S. Righeimer, whose term of office expires next Monday, was yesterday unanimously elected attorney for the board of education to succeed William A. Bither, whose trial on a charge of conspiracy growing out of school board real estate deals began yesterday before Judge Jacob Hopkins.

JUDGE RIGHEIMER.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the board, after announcing that the ten trustees present had all voted in favor of Judge Righeimer, said the new attorney will take up his duties on Tuesday. The appointment is for four years at an annual salary of $10,000, the same as his present judicial position.

Ralph W. Condee has been acting as the board's attorney since Bither's first indictment. It is expected he will be retained as an assistant to Righeimer.

Mother Was Teacher.

Judge Righeimer's mother was a school teacher, three of his sisters are now teachers, and he has two children attending public schools.

"There will be no politics attached to my new office," Judge Righeimer said, upon being informed of his selection. "I will endeavor to aid Dr. Robertson in his ambition to give the public a good, clean administration of school affairs.

Trustee J. Lewis Coath at the board meeting declared he had known Judge Righeimer for years as an attorney, "not as a city hall politician, but as one who cannot be swayed by politics or any other influence."

Defeat Not Repudiation.

"His recent defeat is not a repudiation of the man himself," Mr. Coath added. "He went into the campaign carrying a crown of thorns placed on his head by some of the members of this very board of education, who insist upon functioning as trustees despite many indictments against them."

He was referring to Albert H. Severinghaus, former vice president, and Edwin S. Davis, former president, who were present and voted for Righeimer.

MAYOR SPEAKS IN MEETING OF POLITICAL AIDS

Dr. Robertson and Righeimer Talk.

At a meeting in Medinah temple last night Mayor Thompson opened his campaign for reelection by attacking his critics as "tools of Wall street," pro-British, etc., etc.

The mayor told his precinct captains, seated with the Lundin-Thompson ward leaders, who waved the ward standards for twelve minutes when the mayor began to speak, that he will be a candidate for reelection if "a substantial number of voters" sign pledge cards which were handed out at the meeting.

He had spoken for less than ten minutes when he declared his voice was failing him and asked Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson to read the typewritten speech prepared by the mayor and Capt. Percy B. Coffin, chairman of the state tax commission. The mayor at the end added a few remarks of his own. His remarks and Mr. Ettelson's reading consumed an hour and a half and when the meeting adjourned at 11:10 o'clock more than half of the gallery seats were unoccupied and many of the precinct captains had left for home.

Takes a Vast Range.

The mayor's speech, in part extemporaneous and in part read by Mr. Ettelson, dealt with a variety of subjects, running from foreign relations to the city fire department.

He complimented Georges Clemenceau, whom he had welcomed to Chicago with a handshake on Monday, as "a patriotic French gentleman," but asserted that if this country should take Clemenceau's advice and "sit in at the far east conference table," the United States would be risking another war.

The mayor attacked THE TRIBUNE as pro-British. He charged that the leasing of Canadian timber lands for paper making by this newspaper influenced its attitude on the war. THE TRIBUNE, the mayor said, quoting from its editorials, was "Pro-American in 1914, but pro-war in 1916" after acquiring the paper lands.

Praises Gov. Small.

The mayor praised Gov. Small, who, he said, has remained "true to the people." He declared that the trial of the governor was conducted by "tools of THE TRIBUNE and Wall street." In that category he put Attorney General Brundage. He charged that one of Mr. Brundage's aids in the school board inquiry is "a tool of the traction barons."

Direct election of school board trustees is the mayor's antidote for the present school board situation, he said. He also announced himself in favor of putting certain of the loop surface lines underground.

The mayor attacked Senators McCormick and McKinley, criticizing them for opposing his tax commission bill and for approving the appointment of Federal Judge Wilkerson.

Where Robertson Ranks Him.

In a speech dealing especially with school board affairs, Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the board, compared the mayor to Jesus Christ.

"When I see the mayor criticized I think of the words of our Savior, 'Father forgive them, for they know not what they do,' Dr. Robertson said.

Dr Robertson said Chicago's school administration is giving the city "education of a high quality at the right price." Repair bills under his regime, he said, have been only .13 per cent of the cost of the buildings. This, he said, is a low figure. Construction of new schools is going forward rapidly, he added.

VITAGRAPH HITS LASKY COMPANY; CLAIMS A TRUST

New York, Nov. 28.—The Vitagraph Company of America today began suit for $6,000,000 in the United States District court against the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and a dozen individuals, charging a conspiracy to control the motion picture industry of the nation.

The action was begun under the section of the Sherman law which provides for the assessment of triple damages when interstate commerce is impeded.

The Vitagraph company alleges that since 1919 the defendants have interfered with the business of competing producers and distributors, and have established such control as to have cost the plaintiff $2,000,000.

POLICE SURVEY LANUS FUNERAL; GET NO CLEW

Hoped Slayer Might Return to View the Body.

Whatever truth may cling to the tradition that murderers reappear at the funerals of their victims was not manifested yesterday, so far as police could learn, at the services over the body of "Handsome Joe" Lanus, automobile dealer, who was shot to death last Friday evening in his place of business, 4636 West Madison street.

"HANDSOME JOE" LANUS.

Police mingled with the several hundred men and women who crowded into and about the chapel, hoping to locate some person or overhear some remark that might aid in the solution of the mystery. But they said this was futile.

Many Floral Tributes.

Of the many women to whom Lanus was said to have made costly gifts, none attended the service to pay final respect to his memory, but there were many floral tributes piled around the casket.

The Masonic lodge, of which the murdered man was a member, conducted the funeral services. Burial was in Forest Home cemetery.

Capt. Martin and Lieut. Pearsall of Austin avenue station agreed during the day that all clews indicating jealousy on the part of a woman or the "double cross" in a bootleg plot had been exploded.

Still Hope to Get Slayer.

"We still believe it possible to apprehend the person who killed Lanus," said Lieut. Pearsall. "We think the murder was the result of bitterness over a business deal."

The Austin police are searching for a former partner of Lanus. He is known as "Half" Nelson. He and Lanus were partners in an auto repair shop at Briar place and Halsted street years ago.

NAVY DESIRES "GREAT LAKES," ADMIRAL SAYS

Admiral William A. Moffett declared last night at the Union League club that the navy department favors retention of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, and bitterly attacked the disarmament program.

"I don't see why we should be second in naval strength to Great Britain," he said, "the nation that has the population and resources to be first in the world and is content to be second in anything else is not fit to be a real nation in the best sense of the word."

He added that Bermuda presents a veritable Heligoland, that it could be made the base for bombardment which would raze the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida. "We should acquire this island, the Bahamas and West Indies," he said.

The occasion was a dinner of 500 citizens who protest the government's plan of abandoning the training station. Fred W. Upham sent word that in a conference with him President Harding said he was for retention of the station and would do what he could to influence government action to this end.

Woman Asks Thieves to Return Insurance Papers

Through THE TRIBUNE Mrs. Blanche Titus, 6550 South Francisco avenue, is making an appeal to the robbers who have twice looted her home since last May, to reutrn insurance papers stolen in the last raid, which she says "are of great value to us, but of no use to any one else. So if they would only mail them to us we would be so thankful!"

NO INDICTMENTS IN HALL-MILLS DEATH MYSTERY

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—"For reasons which seem to them sufficient and controlling, the grand jury took no action in the Hall-Mills murder case and laid the matter over. This does not mean necessarily that the matter cannot be taken up again by this or a subsequent grand jury."

With these words Foreman Gibbs of the Somerset county grand jury today made known the fact that no indictment had been returned in one of the most mystifying murder dramas that has faced the country in many years.

For five days Special Deputy Attorney General Mott had been presenting evidence to bolster his theory as to who killed the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills on the Phillips farm the night of Sept. 14.

Judge David Chosen Superior Court Justice

For the second time in his judicial career, Judge Joseph B. David was unanimously chosen as the chief justice of the Superior court at a meeting of the judges of that court held yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. The selection is unique in that it is the first time in the history of the court that a judge has headed the bench twice during his term of service.

Wife Despondent After Quarrel Takes Poison

Despondent over a quarrel with her husband, Mrs. Alice Rogers, 5036 Prairie avenue, attempted to commit suicide in her home last night. She swallowed twenty-one poison tablets. Mrs. Agnes Linn, owner of the rooming house where the Rogers live, called the police. She was taken to the County hospital, where her condition

Street Paving Under City Hall Due for Airing

Another investigation which, it is expected, will reveal further details of the Thompson-Lundin administration's handling of the taxpayers' money got under way yesterday when a subcommittee of the council finance committee, headed by Ald. DILUTED LIQUOR ADDS TO WEALTH OF BOOTLEGGERS

1 Quart of Rum Becomes 3 at Nassau.

During the week ending Nov. 5, which immediately followed the Daugherty ruling which drew in the smuggling deadline from ten to three miles off the American coast, more liquor left Nassau on the boats of the rum runners than in any like period since the passage of the Volstead act. Besides a dozen sailing ships, many tramp steamships swore to clearance papers for ports which they had no intention of visiting.

BY FRANK J. DOLAN.

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—When the news penetrated the American underworld that Nassau, the pearl of the South Atlantic, had been transformed with one stroke of the magic wand of Mr. Volstead from a sleepy, tropical town to a bustling smugglers' nest, the call of the easy money was heard and heeded by hundreds. And shortly following the influx of the American gentry of checkered vests and pants and nimble wit, the British booze wholesalers, who had been sending small shipments of unadulterated, legitimate 110 proof whisky to the United States, learned the error of their ways.

"Why ship uncut whisky to the small time bootleggers when we can make three or four bottles from one, right here in Nassau, slap a British label and a forged internal revenue stamp on it and make about 300 per cent more profit than we'd make if we played fair?" was the sentiment the American adventurers imbued in the Nassau rum merchants.

Dealers Betray Bootleggers.

As a result of this new wrinkle in the trimming of crooks, which Americans introduced there, the Bahama rum dealers set to work to betray their friends, the bootleggers, and installed "breaking down" equipment. In dingy rooms in the rear of the wholesale liquor stores, the rum runners and the wholesalers now break faith with the bootleggers.

Here the rye whisky which is shipped principally in barrels to Nassau from England and Scotland undergoes the strange transition which is usually noted with a sign by the "good stuff" connoisseur who pays from $8 to $15 a bottle in New York, Philadelphia or Boston for the tampered liquor. Here the booze is "let down" by the introduction of water and a tasteless chemical solution until four quarts of "whisky" grow where one was before.

Firm Ships 50,000 Cases Monthly.

The wholesale liquor firm of Pinder, Collins & Brown is the largest in the Bahamas and more than 50,000 cases pass through the doors of this concern each month, New York and Boston bound. The Bahamas Products company and Chrystie & Co. also handle a large amount of the whisky which the smugglers buy.

Most prominent in Nassau smuggling society is the husky figure of Slone Dannenhower, sea captain, sportsman and owner of the queen of the smuggling fleet, the one time pride of the Spanish navy, the Isla de Luzon.

With its battleship gray painted hull streaked with rust and dirt, and its turrets glinting in the sun in Nassau harbor, though less brightly than they did more than twenty years ago when the gunboat met disaster in Manila bay before the guns of Dewey's fleet, the Isla de Luzon looks every inch a smuggler.

Rum Runner Camouflaged.

Dannenhower substituted oil burning engines for the old fashioned steam boiler, fitted the Luzon up as a wrecker, with a machine shop and hoisting apparatus apparently for work on derelicts but in truth as camouflage.

The Luzon sailed for the New Jersey coast about eight months ago on its maiden smuggling trip with a cargo of 25,000 cases of whisky.

The "dry navy" got wind of the shipment and two boats, the Ruby and the Grace, were captured near New York while inside the three mile limit transporting contraband booze from the Luzon. This incident made the bootleggers wary for a time, and the Luzon was forced to put back to Nassau after lying off the Jersey coast for three weeks, where its cargo was disposed of at greatly discounted prices Since then it has made one successful trip and is expected to leave Nassau this week with a capacity cargo.

PROMOTER HUNTED YEAR FOR FRAUDS TAKEN IN GOTHAM

HERMAN HEINSIUS.

Herman Heinsius, former bond broker and president of the Illinois Bond and Mortgage company, 109 North Dearborn street, fought a year in connection with charges of conspiracy to defraud, was brought to Chicago yesterday from New York where he was captured.

Heinsius, together with Henry Hansen of Decatur, Ill., an insurance and coal promoter, and Abram E. Minium, president of the Globe Asbestos company of Globe, Ariz., was indicted on charges of swindling. When granted bail he disappeared.

Among Heinsius' victims are Max Roeder, 1014 North La Salle street, who lost $2,000; Mrs. Anna Bonus, 421 West North avenue, $1,000; Michael Fox, 1301 South Kedzie avenue, $2,000, and Theodore Pallas, Oak Park, Ill., $6,000.

NEW BASIC LAW UP FOR COUNCIL ACTION TODAY

The city council at its session this afternoon will have two important matters before it—the proposed state constitution and Chief of Police Fitzmorris' ordinance to create a health and safety commission to deal with vice. If advance reports of the meeting prove true, the constitution will be roughly handled by the aldermen and the voters advised to disapprove it. The chief's ordinance will carry with a dozen votes to spare, it is predicted. Mayor Thompson may appoint a successor to Mrs. Dorothy Ginsburg, who recently resigned as school trustee.

HARDING DENIES PLAN TO MODIFY PROHIBITION ACT

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—President Harding authorized the statement today that, in the matter of prohibition, the administration is not considering any modification of the Volstead act, but that it is vitally concerned in making enforcement of the prohibition act "everlastingly" effective.

How the administration proposes to make enforcement more effective is still problematical. It is authoritatively declared that the President is not at all dissatisfied with the work of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

Today it was reported that Representative Andrew Volstead [Minn.], author of the enforcement act, recently defeated for reelection, would replace Mr. Haynes. Mr. Volstead, who expects to serve out the remainder of his term in congress, said tonight that he had never heard any suggestion of such a thing.

"Such a report must be grabbed out of the air," he said.

INQUIRY BY THE NAVY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Appointment of a naval board to investigate the "disgraceful" conduct of midshipmen at a ball at Philadelphia Saturday after the annual army-navy football game was announced late today by Secretary Denby at the conclusion of a lengthy conference with Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, superintendent of the naval academy.

The incident, it was said, was not discussed at today's cabinet meeting, but President Harding was described as regarding it as a discouraging and deplorable manifestation of laxity in prohibition enforcement and as being determined that his administration should keep vigorously behind its commitment of law enforcement.

Not to Punish Midshipmen.

Secretary Denby in announcing the appointment of the board of inquiry, the membership of which was not made public, emphasized that its investigation would be directed toward fixing responsibility for conditions that made possible the "disgraceful" incident and was not intended to "bring to book the midshipmen themselves."

Court martials of midshipmen, he indicated, were not expected to result unless individual features not thus far brought to his attention were developed by the investigation.

STOLE WEDDING GIFTS, CHARGE.

Charged with stealing a bag of wedding presents from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bailey, 6856 Yale avenue, while moving the gifts from one house to another, Clarence Hunt, a driver for the Kerwin Motor Express company, was held to the grand jury by Judge Eller.

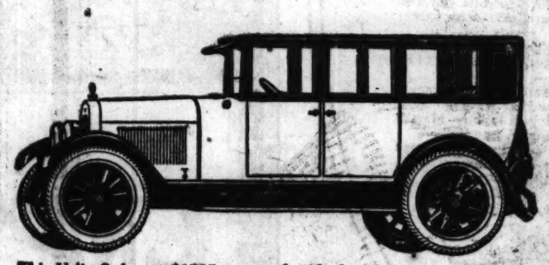
VALUE



This Velie Sedan at $1795, powered with the vibrationless, Velie-built six-cylinder motor, and a rare example of fine design, choice body building and finishing, is from $100 to $300 under other closed cars in this field.

The easiest money you ever made

This is written especially to you who are thinking of buying a closed car of moderate price.

There are two ways in which to reach a decision as to which car you shall choose.

One is to act on snap judgment and on the vague impression that this or that car is the one you want.

The other way is to spend your good money only after you have carefully examined the several possibilities in the market.

* * *

If you bring to the purchase of a closed car the same intelligence and caution you would exercise in any other investment of like size, you will include the Velie car in your consideration.

You will go over it detail by detail, checking one feature after another against the features of the other cars in your mind.

You will find to your surprise that an equal measure of excellence and value will cost you from $100 to $300 more in other cars than in the Velie.

The little time you spend in such an inspection will, if you buy a Velie, return you the easiest money you ever made.

* * *

When you are examining this well-designed and solidly built car remember that it is the product of one of the oldest and most experienced makers in the industry.

Remember that its clean-cut and efficient valve-in-head motor is built by Velie, in Velie's own shops, exclusively for the Velie car.

Remember that into its carriage work have gone the skill and the traditions of many years—the painting of such a body requires 26 days alone.

Remember that Velie cars serve their users so capably that more than sixty per cent of our production goes each year to former Velie owners.

We are operating in every phase of our business to the end that every Velie car we sell makes us a friend.

To good design, to good materials, to good workmanship, we are adding in our closed cars every reasonable item of equipment that can contribute to comfort and convenience.

Finally, we are offering you this tested and serviceable product at a price that represents a saving of hundreds of dollars.

LAUSANNE, Nov. 28.—With a deadlock tying up the most important issue before the near east peace conference—namely: the Turkish frontiers in Europe and Asia Minor and Angora's demand for the Mosul oil fields, serious clashes occurred today in the third commission, which is pinch hitting to keep the conference alive.

First, Turkey declared it declines to accept any responsibility for the cost of the armies of occupation in Constantinople, whose cost had reached a total of $500,000,000 before the recent expensive concentration of British military and naval forces at the Golden Horn.

Greece Fights Reparations.

Second, Greece refused to accept the list of Turkish demands for reparations for devastation done in Asia Minor by the Greek armies, declaring that if reparations were exacted Greece would asked to be reimbursed for the cost of the armies sent there at the behest of the allies at the San Remo conference and for the cost of caring for the Greek refugees since the Greek debacle.

Third, Ismet Pasha told the allies point blank that the Angora government does not recognize the Mudros armistice dictated to Turkey by a British admiral aboard British battleships in October, 1918. He asserted that Turkey recognizes only the terms of the Mudan a agreement concluded with Ismet last month.

Curzon and Ismet Clash.

Lord Curzon insisted heatedly that the British, French, and Italians still regard the Mudros agreement as still in force as regards the allies, whereas they hold that the Mudania conference concerns chiefly Greece. Ismet, however, persisted in maintaining his stand.

Lord Curzon, M. Barrere, the French delegate, and Sig. Garroni, the Italian delegate, tonight approved a draft of the allied reply to the Russian demand for the right to participate fully at all sessions of the conference. The allies will stand on Premier Poincare's original invitation to the soviet government on Oct. 20, which limited Russia to participation in discussion of questions directly affecting the straits. The Russians, however, will be assured unofficially that they will be permitted to attend practically all meetings.

Venizelos May Quit.

As a result of the execution of six Greek officials, charged with being responsible for the debacle in Asia Minor, at Athens this morning, former Premier Venizelos, it is reported tonight, intends to resign as chief minister

"PAY UP, GERMANY"

1—France is reported to be contemplating seizing the Ruhr district on Jan. 15, 1923, when Germany's next payment falls due. France claims that this is the only way to collect the reparations debt.

plenipotentiary of the Greek delegation at the Lausanne conference. M. Venizelos tonight was in touch with an important member of the British delegation, who assured him that it is understood Greece's position here has been rendered untenable by the executions.

The former premier turned as white as marble and remained speechless for more than five minutes when a courier at 6 o'clock dashed into the committee room with the news from Athens.

"I resigned from all participation in Greek affairs two years ago," M. Venizelos told his colleagues later. "I have had nothing to do with them since."

The Russian delegates shed crocodile tears. "We are shocked at such an act. One would never have charged the Reds with committing such an act, not even its worst enemies," one member said.

TCHITCHERIN IN RIGA

BY DONALD DAY.

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 28.—"The most satisfactory solution to the near east situation would be to grant Russia Constantinople and control of the straits, but since this is impossible the soviet government will urge entire control of the straits, as well as the surrounding territory, given to Angora." M. Cehitcherin, foreign commissar of Soviet Russia, heading the delegation to the Lausanne conference, said tonight. M. Tchitcherin said the project of international control only means that the country with the largest navy will possess the straits.

"The Fascisti turned out much better than we expected from this group which so strangely succeeded in grasping power. They have favored Russia We expect to have a further agreement with Italy," he continued.

M. Tchitcherin also clamied the Republican reversal in America shows a strong inclination in America towards negotiating with the soviets.

NEW WAR FOR GREEKS

BY FRANK WILLS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 27.—Gumuljina and environs has declared a war for independence against the Greeks. Gumuljina is a small territory of approximately 1,000,000 people in western Thrace which in 1913 declared itself a republic and fought the Bulgars until it was defeated.

Other news from western Thrace indicates many local riots and disturbances. At Kirka station a strong band of Bulgars blew up a Saloniki train and fought several hours with a Greek battalion until forced to retire.

PROPOSAL FOR WIDER LA SALLE STREET GETS O.K.

By unanimous vote the Chicago Plan commission yesterday adopted the proposal to widen La Salle street from Washington boulevard in the loop north to Lincoln Park.

If their recommendation is adopted by the city council, Chicago will have a second north and south boulevard to relieve Michigan avenue of its over heavy burden of traffic.

Estimates by the commission's experts who have studied the project for more than two years place the cost at $11,500,000. The commission issues a warning, however, that this estimate applies only to the present time and urges that the improvement be pushed rapidly. The imminent widening of South Water street, the commission declares, will increase property values to an extent that will make the La Salle street improvement prohibitively costly.

Important Traffic Artery.

Because of its location, striking into the heart of the loop, La Salle street has been picked as the logical choice for a new north and northwest traffic artery. It connects directly with the principal drives in Lincoln park, with Clark street and Lincoln avenue. If the terminal plans outlined by the commission become realities, and La Salle street south of Jackson boulevard and Sherman street are carried through to the south side, the new boulevard will provide an alternate route with Michigan avenue for through traffic.

It is proposed to widen La Salle street to 100 feet between Washington and Randolph streets by taking 20 feet of the property on the west side of the street opposite the city hall. Between Randolph street and Austin avenue it will be 120 feet wide, 20 feet being taken on each side of the street. North of Austin avenue it is proposed to make it 108 feet in width by adding 14 feet on each side. A bridge across the river will be not less than 94 feet wide.

Figures on the traffic which now pours into the loop over the Michigan avenue link were given out by E. S. Taylor, manager of the commission. Eighty per cent of the traffic from the north enters the loop by Michigan avenue. Of that which stops in the loop, 57 per cent goes west of State street. This is the traffic, said Mr. Taylor, which the commission hopes to divert by the new improvement.

OPERATES STILL; HELD IN $1,500.

Robert Hunter, 5545 South Halsted street, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,500 yesterday by Judge Eller on a charge of operating a still at his home.

REORGANIZATION OF THE COURTS—II.

Besides consolidation and reorganization of the structure of the courts, described in a previous editorial, the proposed draft of a new constitution vests in the Supreme court the power and duty of prescribing rules of pleading, practice, and procedure. This follows the plan of the federal courts, that of many states, and of the highly efficient English system. Under the present constitution these rules are made by the legislature in a statute on practice and procedure, and this plan, professional students assert, has proved undesirable.

It would seem that the judiciary is better equipped to make rules for the conduct of its own business than another body, even though the latter may consist largely of lawyers and act upon their advice. But the worst defect of the legislative method is that it is inelastic. Rules fixed in a statute must be altered by statute, a tardy and complicated process. Illinois has had enough experience with this cumbersome method to know its defects and welcome the sensible and well proved plan of imposing upon the courts the duty of making rules of business for themselves.

That the Supreme court is the agency which ought to make the rules is equally apparent, for it is of importance that practice and procedure shall be uniform. As Mr. Justice Carter remarks: "Under present conditions in Illinois there is no single head in the judicial system to make sure that all of the courts cooperate in the function of doing justice. Numerous courts have been created over the same territory, with overlapping jurisdictions. Courts of one part of the state may be far behind with their dockets, while courts and judges in another part of the state are idle a part of the time. The proposed constitution takes a long step in the direction of remedying this situation. The Supreme court is given effective authority over the judicial organization of the state through its power to make rules of pleading, practice, and procedure; through its power to assign judges temporarily from one district or circuit to another; through the power to appoint judges of the Appellate courts, and through the authority vested in the Supreme court over the Circuit court of Cook county. A unified control over the judicial system has thus been given to the Supreme court, whose members are elected by the people."

Objection has been made to these provisions on the theory that they vest too much power in the Supreme court. We are inclined to think this objection is more theoretical than practical and the experience of other states and of the federal courts seems to support the proposed changes. We must not overlook the fact that the Supreme court under the draft is elected directly by the people as under the present constitution and is amenable for any abuse of power and for the inefficiency of its administration.

Objections to Article V. of the draft, in our opinion, are not well founded. It is to the interest of the taxpayers and of litigants that the unsainly, rigid, and wasteful organization and administration of our state courts be radically reformed, and we think the changes proposed are all in the right direction. The objection to giving the Supreme court the task of making rules will not appeal to the common sense of the layman or to disinterested professional judgment. The judicial branch of government should control its own administration, subject, of course, to substantive law where it applies. Moreover, if confusion and unnecessary complications are to be avoided, it is the Supreme court which alone is in a position to impose harmony. This is not a power which sensible citizens need have any fear of. It is common sense to give it to the Supreme court.

As for the proposed power of appointing and assigning Appellate judges, we think that also is a measure of efficiency which will accrue to the public benefit. Doubtless it makes the Supreme court more powerful, but what of that? Adequate power vested in an agency responsible to the people is essential to good government. The criticism that the changes will put politics into the judiciary is not sound.

We believe the changes proposed, if adopted, would save public money and the money of litigants, would decrease, not increase, political influence in the courts, and would greatly expedite the processes of the law, which are now unduly slow, uncertain, and costly.

EXIT THE LIBERIAN LOAN.

The United States senate has consigned the $5,000,000 Liberian loan bill to the lethal chamber. To all intents and purposes, the measure is dead. If, as has been suggested, the proposal of that loan, which was made under the Wilson administration, was for the purpose of attracting Liberian votes to the Wilson program at the Versailles peace conference, we may congratulate ourselves upon the death sentence.

There has been only one valid suggestion, and that made vaguely, that the loan was anything more than a sentimental or political measure. That is the suggestion that perhaps there may be something in Liberia which might some day be of value to the United States. We have not been told what that something is, and we do not know that it exists. If such resources do exist, there might be some practical basis for the loan as a means of maintaining an American interest in and hold upon the future disposition of these resources. But evidence of their existence seem too meager to justify the loan in public opinion.

It is more likely that the loan would merely serve to help entangle the United States in the future affairs of this African country. That probably would meet with the approval of England, France, and Italy, but for that very reason it is an additional reason why the defeat of the loan is a cause for American congratulation.

The greatest advantage, however, is in the indication that the senate is putting practical economics and policy above sentimentalism. We have been too long in a mental condition in which the cry of a Negro baby in Africa would serve as the "open sesame" to the United States treasury. We have cause for thankfulness if such is no longer the case.

SINGLE TRACK MINDS.

Eugene Debs, veteran Socialist leader, spoke to several thousand cheering people at the Ashland auditorium. The high point of his address was that sovietism was "the only good which came out of the world war, and a universal republic is just as sure as tomorrow's sunrise."

The audience cheered that, but it did so because it is the customary and proper thing for such audiences to cheer such statements. What those people really gathered for was to see Debs and hear him abuse this government and its works. They are against the government because they believe that under it they are not getting as much of the material things of life as some of their neighbors. They know that Debs is against it because he sympathizes with them. They know he will say things, such as his denunciation of war and his defiance of restraint, which will give them a thrill, without necessitating the burden of logical thought.

So Debs speaks to their ignorance and passions, and they applaud. They feel. They do not think. It is the same with Debs, except that he feels more passionately and can voice his emotions more forcefully than they. That is what has made him their leader, and maintains him in that position. His absence of thought is as complete as theirs. Therefore their sympathy is perfect.

The soviet is the one good thing that came out of the world war, he says. We ourselves do not believe many good things came out of the world war, and unquestionably many bad things came out of it. But certainly one good thing did come out of it for the United States. That was the convincing evidence that this country possesses a national consciousness which makes it a unit in the face of any external danger. It was the proof that there is no sacrifice too great for our people to make in defense of their homes, their rights, and the integrity of their country. Debs sees only a "sacrifice of 60,000 American boys to make 30,000 new American millionaires." He is blind to the greater thing. That is because he has no country. The United States means no more to him than does Germany or Finland. He wants a "universal republic," and he is willing to destroy the United States to get it.

He does not think. He feels. He feels that the poor people of America live under hardship and oppression. Therefore he would supplant the government under which such conditions are possible. He favors the soviet government. If he were capable of one logical thought he would realize that sovietism has brought more ruin and misery to Russia in a given period than the persecutions of czarism. Starvation, murder, disease, and complete destruction of all productive energy have been its chief results. Even its sponsors have admitted its failure and invited capital from the rest of the world to stimulate and restore the country.

Still Debs does not see. He will never see. He is blind by habit and desire. There is but one mark upon his brain. Those who so joyfully and ignorantly cheer him on are coming, if they have not already come, to the same blindness.

IMPROVING SEDATIVES FOR FEMININE NERVES.

Miss Anna Lenz, a young woman of Chilton, Wis., calmly confesses that she killed the mother of eight children with poisoned candy. She didn't mean to murder her, she says. She intended to make another woman ill because the other woman, of the same surname, had accused her of attending a dance with the husband of the woman she killed. So she put rat poison in some candy and mailed it to the wrong woman. The woman is dead, and eight children are motherless.

If Wisconsin jurors are of the same caliber as the representative males on most juries throughout the country, that elaborate explanation should be enough to acquit her of any crime, or perhaps to give her six months in the county jail for disturbing the peace. Certainly it should be enough if beauty and a winning smile are added.

There's nothing like murder for settling such irritations of feminine temperament. It has been more or less customary for the frail young things to wait until they find another woman vamping their husbands, or until they find they themselves have been deceived by a faithless lover. But times change and freedom improves under the system of sentimentality which has so frequently decreed that it is no crime, or at worst no capital crime, for a woman to act as judge, jury, and executioner when she is emotionally disturbed. A few years ago, probably, Miss Lenz would have balanced the scale with a few handfuls of the hair of her alleged defamer. Today she adopts the more modern system and kills. The fact that she killed the wrong woman is merely an unfortunate incident. The Amalgamated Murderesses haven't quite perfected the system to a point where such mistakes are impossible.

But give them time, and the continued encouragement and approval of sentimental and soft headed juries, and perhaps they will correct that.

[Rock Island Argus.]

Trees are popularly supposed to shed their beauty with their leaves. The average person is scarcely conscious of their presence until, in spring, their buds burst forth, bringing color back into the landscape. During the summer, as masses of green, they are appreciated, and in their special glory of autumn there are none so mentally poor as to ignore them.

But where beauty of color is a simple language, beauty of form is realized only by the aid of a somewhat finer sense. Trees invariably have it. They are more fortunate in this respect than many other works of nature. Whatever the accident they have suffered, however broken or distorted they may be as the result of too rude elements, they retain this supreme quality. Only the ignorant butchery of man can take it from them.

The strong lines of trunks, the lacery of branches and twigs, the texture of bark, all contribute to the winter beauty of trees. The person who looks from his living room window and fails of consciousness of this beauty can gain it readily enough by looking from bleak windows which afford no view of trees.

RESTLESSNESS.

There is a curse upon me—and I cannot settle down—
The town calls from the city—the city from the town:
The joy of things grows brittle, the warmth of love grows cold,
The things I have are jaded—the words I hear are old:
And just beyond the cresting hill, or just across the street
There is a newer lover—there is a song more sweet:
My work is play a little while—and then it starts to irk;
My play delights a day or two—and then it's dull as work:
And the mouth that feeds me kisses will annoy me after while,
O, sometimes when the gypsy lure is at its worst in me—
And all I love is hateful, and I'm lonely as can be—
It's nice to think, that, waiting, when the tides of life go by,
Is a still bed, and a smooth bed, to give me peace for aye!

CHEZ JEANNE.

Sir: And now comes news of the old days, not just that incomprehensible longing to live again our cherished memories, not just that poignant nostalgia that assails one for a glimpse of the Dream City at night, but at last, after four years of dreaming, a reality. Our dear Paris, and a night therein. And do you remember that night long ago when the only starlight was the twinkling of many fags, we waited, wet and dreary, for our train to carry us back to that distant roar, which in our souls dripped with red echoes, and which it seemed we had left but minutes before. Ah, gray, hustling people; porters, comrades, women. No train, and raining, "Nous avons encore?" Shouts, subdued laughter, heartaches, something intangible. "Encore une demi-heure." A stir, but no, we know these trains. Overhead, the drone, the Hun beast-ridden dragonfly obscured by the blanket of darkness. Only a murmur of wrath for him up there, for he soon fails. And that tragic, child-faced Jeanne, who sang among us as we waited—

"Or, voici la grande journee,
Ou tout reluisants, pleins d'orgueil,
Les drapeaux s'en vont en——"

The confusion of departing swallows her thin voice, we are finally off. Remember, sir, remember, we can never forget. And now comes this all back again for just one night, even Jeanne will be there. Please, sir, send me that one pass.

HOW TO SAVE COAL.

IN view of the probable coal shortage this winter, W. H. Driscoll gives the following advice as to the operation of a heating plant:

A good draft is essential to proper combustion. Therefore the chimney should be absolutely tight and the smoke connection as short and straight as possible. A hand damper should be installed in the smoke pipe to regulate the intensity of the draft. This should be installed in addition to any other mechanically operated dampers that may be in use.

The heater base should be tight and closely fastened to the floor to prevent air leakage into the ash pit. All flue fire and ash pit doors should be filed and fitted to make tight joints.

Heating surfaces should be kept clean and free from soot and ash accumulations, and the entire ash pit should be cleaned once a day; grates should be kept in good condition, so that they will shake easily and have no broken places for coal to drop through. Unburned or partly burned coal should not appear in the ashes at any time.

Steam heaters and hot water piping should be completely covered with a good grade of insulation of ample thickness to prevent heat losses. The firepot should be kept filled at all times. It is a mistaken notion to assume that a low fire effects economy. On the contrary, it is wasteful and extravagant.

Do not shake your fires too often, too long, or too violently, especially in mild weather. Regular attention to the fire by one member of the family is desirable.

The firepot should have sufficient coal capacity to require attention not more than once in eight hours.

Keep your house temperature lowered. Sixty-six degrees should be sufficient for comfort. If you are not comfortable at this temperature you are not properly clothed or the humidity in your house is too low.

Shorten the heating season as much as possible. Do not start your heater with the first sign of cold weather. An open fireplace or a gas heater will furnish sufficient heat at the beginning of the cool season.

Heat as few rooms as the comfort of your family will permit. A tremendous waste is caused by the heating of unoccupied rooms.

To humidify a house heated by a furnace, place an evaporating pan in the hot air chamber above the firepot, supply it with water from a tank set at the same level by the side of the furnaces.

If there is steam heat, use the steam from the coils to humidify. Watch the water in the boiler. A few electric fans properly placed will greatly facilitate heating. On occasions a fan placed at the opening of a register or in the air duct solves a heating problem.

OCCUPATIONAL SKIN DISEASE.

Mr. J. H. C. writes: "After reading your article pertaining to skin diseases in shops I realized for the first time the cause of my present condition. Have worked for twelve years in a shop where I have come in contact more or less with cutting fluids and oils. Three years ago I contracted an eruption termed by physicians as eczema. It gathers in patches on my arms, knees and body. It forms small blisters that itch intensely, causing me to scratch and irritate them. Have taken quarts of Fowler's Solution, and used all kinds of exterior treatment. Have been given many forms of treatment, including blood tests and serums. They subside for a while, only to break out in another place. I am 56 years old and have always been healthy and clean. Could you please suggest something to help?"

REPLY.

The rule is as follows: Wash well before going to work, grease the skin with lanolin or some similar ointment. When you finish work again, wash with soap and hot water. If the skin is very dry, after this washing apply a little cold cream or other grease. If this does not cure you, see your plant physician, who has had some experience in industrial skin troubles. He should have the government bulletins and some of the books on this subject in his library.

BLOOD SERVES NOTICE.

Miss N. H. writes: "1. I am 65 and in good health, but my blood pressure is 180. Is this alarmingly high, and if so should I take any treatment or should I let it alone? I eat two good meals a day, but only take meat at one of them.

"2. My height is 5 feet 5 inches and my weight 155 pounds.

"3. Is high blood pressure ever caused by an abscessed tooth?"

REPLY.

1. Not alarmingly high, but a definite announcement to you that you must change your habits somehow. Have you albumin in the urine? Are you constipated? Do you overeat?
2. You are moderately overweight.
3. Possibly that is a factor.

THORN IN THE FLESH.

Mrs. A. K. writes: "Three weeks ago my little boy fell into a hedge fence and penetrated the flesh in his leg right below the knee, which became very painful. About one week later pus formed. To give larger drainage, the doctor lanced the wound. I have been poulticing it for the last two weeks. The pus is still running. The child is in a rundown condition and has a temperature at times. What do you think the trouble is? What would you advise?"

REPLY.

I think he has a thorn in the flesh. Stop poulticing it. Clean it up and then have the doctor remove the foreign body. If the child has fever and is in a rundown condition it is not wise to wait longer for the foreign body to come away.

PRO-MEXICO.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—On my return from Mexico your editorial of Nov. 21 was brought to my attention.

I was in Mexico when the correspondence between Señor Pani and Mr. Summerlin was published and discussed in the Mexican congress, and any sane man will justify the statements made by the Mexican congressmen that they and not Mr. Summerlin shall amend the Mexican constitution.

Do not our own congressmen voice their opinions and resent Mr. Clemenceau's demands that we do as he wishes us to do?

I have traveled through Mexico for twenty-five years, have never lost a penny for goods sold, and have found honorable business men the rule.

You find no conditions there such as the Chicago school board disgrace. True, there is some graft, but I do not believe they have in their entire history coined as much money as has been used for graft in this country to violate our eighteenth amendment.

There is no such reign of terror there as exists in our labor situation.

Bandit bands, of course, practice cruelties and commit inexcusable crimes, but they try to catch them, and when they do they punish them. A popular one, Gen. Murguia, was only recently captured, tried, and executed. This in contrast to your news item of yesterday that Stevens, a notorious crook, has been arrested some three hundred times, but never served a sentence as yet.

Your editor says there is ignorance, cruelty, tyranny, and life on a low level. Can he cite anything that even bandits committed that compares with the Herrin outrage and the recent lynching and burning of Mexicans in the southern states, or the deliberate killings and bombings committed by some of our labor leaders?

Why incite the Mexicans, who have as many grievances against us as we have against them? Why call them all the filthy names you can think of when crimes committed in our cities are so much worse than even their bandits commit in the wilderness?

The depression and tightness of money is due only to the avariciousness of Wall street. It demanded $50,000,000 in gold, payable before Jan. 1, before any financial assistance is given. The result is that $35,000,000 have already been sent there in gold [there is no paper money in Mexico], and naturally money is scarce.

If you would preach that our business houses treat Mexican business houses as they treat them here, extend credit when it is deserved and divorce business from politics and eliminate slurs on the character of those who express themselves for a government for, by, and of the people and not Wall street, you would construct and help; but such editorials as you give to the public destroy confidence and only enrage all Mexicans, whom you class as a whole with the scum of the earth, and of whom you know and they know we have a great plenty in our land. FRED W. GOETZ.

TELEPHONE RATES.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Why are the telephone rates still on a war basis? There has been a downward revision on rates of all public utilities such as gas, street cars, elevated, etc., to conform to the readjustment of wartime inflation. Why should we make an exception of the telephone company? C. R. TREULICH.

THE CHICAGO MAYORALTY.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—I care not how much Republicans and Democrats may denounce Mayor Thompson, the fact remains unless the Deneen and Brundage followers unite on some strong candidate and honestly support him in the primary fight, Thompson will be renominated, and in all probability, reelected. The Democrats have a field of candidates but not one in the group can defeat Thompson, simply because Harrison and his cohorts will continue playing the dog in the manger.

I cannot see Democratic victory because of the Harrison and anti-Harrison sentiment in the Democratic party. It is therefore up to the Republicans to bring about unity, and select a strong, popular candidate to battle Thompson at the primary. Failure to do so simply means Thompson for four years more.

REPUBLICAN.

PRO-CLEMENCEAU.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—It is interesting to know why M. Clemenceau has come to this country. In the face of riffraff and indifference, he has come to speak the truth with all the courage of his conviction.

Does any one who has resided in France, who has known her citizens, doubt for one instant that France will need more than the strength of her present army to protect her from the foreign onslaught that is inevitable if America refuses all protective interest in France?

ADD PROBLEMS OF PROHIBITION.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Why don't our alderman make some arrangement to relieve the suffering public in general regarding comfort stations throughout this city? The saloons are gone or going fast. There is no accommodation in the many drug stores. J. TOM BROWN.

DAWES FOR MAYOR; BUT BET AT EVANSTONIAN.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Moral courage, independence, integrity, and capability are the four great qualities most to be desired in a successor to Thompson as mayor. I doubt if any other citizen of Chicago possesses these qualities to a higher degree than Gen. Charles G. Dawes. There would certainly be a big time in this town for experts and other grafters when he took control. Allied to no faction, he fits the situation perfectly. He can be elected if Chicago says "I will." Let's go!

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRAT.

AN OBJECTION TO THE NEW CONSTITUTION.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The great objection to the proposed constitution is that it ignores the fundamental American division of the governmental powers, namely the executive, legislative and judicial, in that section 93 confers legislative powers on the Supreme court. It says "The Supreme court shall have the exclusive power to prescribe," rules of pleading, practice, and procedure in all courts, subject, however, to the right or power of the legislature to change any such judicial legislation.

This is the judicial recall with a vengeance. Senator LaFollette could not improve on it.

Putting legislative powers in the judiciary was tried out and found wanting in the ordinance of July 13, 1787, for the government of this northwest territory, since carved into the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan.

Article 6 was the anti-slavery clause of the ordinance of 1787, but under section 5 the judges actually introduced slavery into the northwest territory by adopting the Virginia and Kentucky slave code or at least parts of it.

The Declaration of Independence shows that it was the law and procedure of the crown and the crown judges which in part led the American colonies to revolt, and then adopt the fundamental principle that courts shall not legislate.

I think it would be better to have the legislature pass the laws and let the judges interpret them with the reserved right to pass on their unconstitutionality.

OTTO GERSTAD.

ANSWERING MR. DONOVAN OF OKLAHOMA.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 25.—Granting that Jack Walton, governor-elect of Oklahoma, is a real man and a friend of the people, we wonder if he thoroughly approves of the policy adopted by his advocate, Pat Donovan. From the latter Mr. Donovan sent to THE TRIBUNE we draw the conclusion that he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan within himself. He advocates that painless American [Oklahoma American] method of disposing of dissenters to his own personal opinion by injecting them with hot lead.

If this gentleman is typical of the voters of Oklahoma who elevated their chosen candidate to the gubernatorial chair, we feel thankful that we are not forced to conduct business in the confines of the state.

One more thing for Pat Donovan to masticate is the fact that he places himself in the same category as Chicago criminals who follow his ritual.

REPORT SMALL MAY NOT GIVE GUNMAN PARDON

Expect Walter Stevens to Forfeit Bonds.

Unconfirmed rumors prevalent in Springfield last night indicated that Gov. Small will refuse to grant a pardon to Walter Stevens, Chicago gunman, convicted in an Aurora court in 1918 of the attempted murder of a policeman and sentenced to fourteen years in the penitentiary. No action will be taken, at least, until Stevens has been apprehended and presented to the Joliet prison authorities in accordance with the Supreme court mandate.

WALTER STEVENS.

Kane county authorities armed with this mandate are reported to have conducted an unsuccessful search in Chicago for the terrorist, who has successfully "beat" more than 300 "bum raps," or criminal charges, and who, according to a friend, will forfeit his $10,000 bonds before submitting to arrest.

Will Ask Forfeiture.

State's Attorney Charles Abbott of Kane county last night asserted that unless Stevens is taken into custody by 10 o'clock this morning he will move to have Stevens' bonds forfeited.

Following the refusal of the United States Supreme court to act on the petition of Stevens for a rehearing of the evidence against him three weeks ago powerful politicians and state officers close to the administration are said to have "worked" on the pardon board to obtain Stevens' freedom.

Consults Chamberlin Here.

Chauncey Jenkins, state director of public welfare and Will Colvin, member of the pardon board, came to Chicago immediately after the Supreme court's ruling to consult with Henry Barrett Chamberlin, director of the Chicago crime commission and active in numerous efforts to convict Stevens.

No statements have been forthcoming from either Mr. Chamberlin or the crime commission regarding their stand for or against the pardon of Stevens, although it is known that Mr. Chamberlin discussed the matter with Gov. Small.

MISS ROCHE TO HEAD N. U. WOMEN NOT IN SORORITIES

[Toloff Studio Photo]

The new organization is prompted by a desire to widen social life on the campus and to give non-sorority coeds a larger share in college activities. Its organizers contend that sorority girls have monopolized, to a great extent, social and college leadership, the bulk of the students, about 60 per cent, being unable to possess themselves of the same advantages because of lack of sorority affiliations.

PETERS DENIES WHEALAN PADDED PAY ROLL CHARGE

Denial of charges made before the employment committee of the Circuit bench yesterday that pay roll irregularities existed in his office was made yesterday by Sheriff Charles W. Peters. He asserted the attacks emanated from "sources which are bound to harass and besmirch me, even on the eve of my departure from office."

John D. Erickson, the sheriff's son-in-law, and A. J. Smith, carried on the pay roll as deputy sheriff and clerk respectively, and paid for work not performed, according to the charges made by Commissioner Emmett Whealan, had been employed as "special and secret investigators, Sheriff Peters contended.

Produces Records of Raids.

A report showing a record of raids made by deputy sheriffs from October, 1921, to Nov. 15, 1922, was produced by Sheriff Peters, indicating that 110 persons had been arrested in about thirty raids and 102 convictions had resulted. The report did not show the names of the raiders, but Sheriff Peters insisted that both Erickson and Smith had been members of the parties.

"The services of confidential agents became a necessity," the sheriff declared, "after I was convinced that I could not even plan a drive on a notorious dive without a 'tipoff' of the plan."

Upheld by Judge.

Sheriff Peters' position that he was not accountable to the county for moneys collected in the marriage court, but was custodian of the fund under the direction of the Circuit bench, was sustained by Judge Harry Fisher. Sheriff Peters contends that he paid the salaries of country judges serving on the local bench by court order and asserted that at today's meeting he would seek justification of the payments made from the fund to Warden Westbrook.

Throws Apple; Fined $25; Advises Thrower; Fined $5

Hitting a man in the eye with an overripe apple cost Louis Spelling, a fruit peddler of 1658 West 28th street, $25 and costs yesterday, while his partner, Albert Stolberg, 1342 West 14th street, who advised him to throw the apple, was fined $5 and costs by Judge Jacobs.

TWO REALTY MEN HELD ON CHARGE OF "CON" GAME

D. E. Mulvey and O. M. Mackie, president and branch manager, respectively, of D. E. Mulvey & Co., real estate agents of 5 North La Salle street, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Haas on a charge of operating a confidence game, the complaint being made by Miss Marceline McCarthy, 5391 Lakewood avenue, formerly of New Orleans, La.

Miss McCarthy charges that in September she gave Mackie, branch manager at 5155 Broadway, a check for $10,000, desiring to purchase a building at Broadway and Gary-pl., owned by Thomas S. McClellan, to which, the Mulvey company represented to her, they held the title. She found, she stated, that they did not have the title and that Mr. McClellan did not wish to sell.

Miss McCarthy alleged that when she asked for her money back, Mulvey and Mackie would not return it.

TEACHERS CLAIM THEY WIN DEBATE ON CONSTITUTION

Meet Proxies of Justice Carter on Pensions.

One thousand Chicago school teachers heard a discussion of pension provisions of the proposed new state constitution at the Olympic theater yesterday and, according to Chicago Teachers' federation leaders left the meeting more determined than ever to oppose ratification of the document.

MISS MARGARET HALEY.

The meeting was the outgrowth of an exchange of letters between Justice Orrin N. Carter of the State Supreme court and Miss Mary M. Abbe, president of the teachers' federation. In his letter Justice Carter said that views of the Chicago Teachers' Federation regarding pensions were "so clearly erroneous that they should be corrected."

Douglas Sutherland, secretary of the general committee for ratification of the proposed new basic law; Rufus C. Dawes, and former State Senator Morton D. Hull, all members of the constitutional convention, represented Justice Carter at the meeting. They explained that the jurist's health would not permit him to appear. I. T. Greenacre, attorney, and Miss Margaret A. Haley, business representative for the federation, were on the firing line for the teachers.

Miss Haley Speaks.

Miss Haley stated the views of the teachers as follows:

"The power to control pension legislation for Chicago teachers will be transferred to the city under the so-called 'home rule' sections and when these sections become effective city council action will be substituted for the present pension law thereby automatically repealing it, or

"If the power is not transferred to the council, then under section 44 of the proposed new constitution, which forbids local or special laws by the legislature, any pension legislation must be state-wide in its application and the Chicago teachers pension fund would be merged into a state-wide fund, hereby automatically repealing the present law for Chicago teachers; or

"If the new constitution can be construed to leave pensions out of the local home rule provision for Chicago, then legislative action concerning pensions would have to be state-wide and could not be local, so as to apply only to Chicago. This would practically merge the Chicago fund and other funds into a state-wide fund."

Miss Haley, when the meeting was over, said:

"Our contentions have been sustained absolutely. They actually admit that our interpretation is not erroneous."

Views of Her Opponents.

"If the new constitution is adopted," Mr. Dawes said, "there never can be a question raised as to the constitutionality of the pension systems nor as to the power of the legislature to create obligations upon these pension funds in such a manner as to recognize the individual equities created by contributions to the fund."

Mr. Hull pointed out that the power of taxation is specifically reserved to the state legislature and that the city council, in respect to special legislation for the city of Chicago, has only the power of veto.

"It is to my mind unthinkable that the teachers should not fare as well, both as to tenure of office and compensation, for services rendered under such local control as they do under the present system," he said. If they are opposed to this, they are opposed to home rule."

No New Bar Primary.

The Chicago Bar association refused to reconsider its 1,161 to 724 for ratification of the new constitution. Harold L. Ickes, president of the People's Protective league, had asked that the question be resubmitted. Roger Sherman, president of the association, notified Mr. Ickes that "no good purpose could be served by holding another primary and none will be held." He continued:

"Your request for a second primary does not appeal to us with any great force, since it is predicated on a theory that is not supported by the facts, that on the first primary the members were hurried and were ignorant of the matter concerning which they were voting."

Mr. Sherman expressed the association's willingness to take part in public meetings, stating, "We will furnish speakers to represent the association and to meet such speakers as you may select."

GIRL WITH ONE ARM, LEG, LEARNS HOW TO SWIM

The loss of her left leg and arm several years ago did not deter Miss Mary Gindick, 17 years old, a freshman at Northwestern university, from becoming an expert swimmer, Tom Robinson, swimming coach at the school, announced yesterday.

"When she enrolled in the school last fall," said the coach, "I noticed her and asked her if she wanted to learn to swim. At first she hesitated and said that she thought it was impossible. Finally she came out and within ten lessons was able to swim twenty-five yards, and now is among the best in her class. At a recent test she was given the grade of "A."

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 28 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or gripe. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill, calomel, coal-tar drugs and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before.

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. E. M. Burgess of Enfield, N. C., who is 73, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Charles Chorman of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., wasted fifteen years and considerable money on other remedies before finding steady relief with Syrup Pepsin.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, piles or night cramps. Many thousands of elderly people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a cent a dose. Druggists have sold it successfully for 30 years, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

THE TIN CUP UNDER THE FAUCET

THE old public drinking cup is gone. The dirty glass with its finger marks and the tin cup under the faucet have been discarded in favor of the cleanly paper cup.

Why? Because health boards recognized that the mouth of the average human being is infected with bacteria which are deposited on the public drinking cup, and it thus becomes an active disseminator of disease.

Why Not Banish Bacteria From the Mouth Itself?

Kolynos Dental Cream provides a much more important safeguard against these dangerous organisms. It destroys and banishes from your mouth hundreds of millions of these bacteria which of necessity enter your mouth through the air you breathe, the water you drink, and the food you eat.

You use a dentifrice to cleanse the teeth—to restore their beautiful natural lustre. But why not use a dentifrice which, in addition to cleaning your teeth, will also banish mouth bacteria and prevent decay?

Kolynos Performs Both Offices Perfectly, without a single trace of grit or injurious acid. It aids in the prevention of pyorrhea by purifying the teeth, gums and mouth membranes, and is extensively prescribed by dentists and physicians for this purpose.

We have on file in our New Haven laboratories personal applications from over 47,000 American Dentists and 74,000 American Physicians for Kolynos Dental Cream, to distribute among their patients.

Why do without Kolynos Dental Cream when its daily use is your best tooth insurance and its additional germicidal property offers unusual protection to your general health?

EXECUTION OF CHILDERS MAKES IRISH PAY DEBTS

President Cosgrave Says Honesty Wave Is On.

DUBLIN, Nov. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—During the session of the Dail Eireann today the execution of Erskine Childers and the treatment of Mary MacSwiney while she was in Mount Joy prison on a hunger strike were attacked.

The execution of Childers was brought forward by George Gavan Duffy, former minister of foreign affairs, and the treatment of Miss MacSwiney by Cathal O'Shannon, laborite. The government's action in both cases was strongly upheld by William Cosgrave, president of the Dail.

Duffy Afraid of Shadow.

Mr. Cosgrave said Mr. Duffy was afraid of his own shadow; that he made his speech to tell the people outside that he was not guilty, like the others.

The members of the Dail, Mr. Cosgrave continued, were dealing with a situation in which the plan of assassination was in the minds of the people opposed to the government, and their newspapers reeked with incentives to their dupes to commit these assassinations. They had not succeeded so far, but not one deputy feared the dagger or the bullet.

Mr. Duffy was denounced by Mr. Cosgrave for not being present in the chamber to say anything regarding the four poor men from the president's own parish who were executed prior to Childers. He said Duffy had waited for the execution of an intellectual to make his case. The president asked whether the government was to spare intellectuals, with money at their backs, and punish their unfortunate dupes.

At the very moment he was speaking, Mr. Cosgrave said there was a gang actually seeking to arrest members of the parliament and destroy the treaty. What was the effect of the execution, he asked. Already, he said, stolen property was being restored; people were tumbling in to pay their debts, and a steadying effect was visible all over the country.

Mary MacSwiney to Recover.

The condition of Miss Mary MacSwiney, who was released from Mountjoy prison yesterday, the twenty-fourth day of her hunger strike, was described today as being as good as could be looked for. She was excited and feverish, but at the nursing home where she was being cared for the physicians expressed belief that her recuperation would be only a question of a little time. Her condition, in fact, was considered much better than that of her sister Annie, whose fast outside the prison was more trying.

A reporter for the Irish Independent who interviewed Annie quoted her as saying that after three or four days of hunger striking a person loses all desire for food.

"I lost all craving for food," she said, "and my attitude towards it became like my desire for a million pounds. I would like it but I wasn't particularly concerned about not having it."

MOTHER IS SEEKING FRANK SEMRAU JR., HER MISSING SON

FRANK SEMRAU JR.

Mrs. Frank Semrau, 3727 Commercial avenue, has asked THE TRIBUNE to help find her 14 year old son, Frank Jr., who disappeared Nov. 8. The boy and his pal, Valentine Berlewski, left home early in the evening in the Semrau car, which is a 1923 model Overland. Nothing has been heard from them since. Frank was a student at St. Michael's school and, according to his mother, was a good student and a thoroughly worth while boy. She fears he has been influenced by older companions.

SET STAGE FOR MURDER SCENE; GULPED POISON

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The mystery of the death by poison of Vaden E. Boge was solved today when the police learned the poison that took his life had been purchased by himself.

But the motive that prompted him to stage his suicide in such dramatic fashion is yet unrevealed. It may be known when a letter written by him to his mother in Hillsboro, Ore., reaches its destination.

Mrs. Ina Lingenfelter, a relative whom Boge was visiting, today told Detective Sergeant Herman Cline that he had written the letter Sunday.

"I can't understand why he should kill himself," Mrs. Lingenfelter said, "nor why he should go to such pains to make it appear that he was murdered."

"Did he have a love affair?" she was asked. "Was he in ill health, out of money? Did he hope to involve some woman in his death?"

They could not say.

Boge may have been worried over his finances. He had lost a job in Portland, it is said. He may have been unable to find work in Los Angeles. His clothes were shabby. He had but $11.12.

The police believe that he may have insurance policies that might be canceled in the event of suicide. That, they say, would supply a motive for the attempt to "make it look like a murder."

Skin Eruptions Fade Away

Kloria ends itching, dandruff, boils, and other infections. Soothes and heals like magic. Free trial—test it.

ONE trial of Kloria for almost any skin disease will show you results never before thought possible. The way it stamps out barber's itch, eczema, and other skin diseases, almost challenges belief. The way it soothes irritation, itching scalp or itching anywhere, is truly amazing. For dandruff, simply wet the scalp a few times, and the trouble disappears; harmless to the hair.

This is the new and wonderful antiseptic, discovered in the world war, which, by scientific test, is over 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid. This great germicidal power is what makes it so effective.

Yet Kloria is not poisonous, doesn't burn or irritate, is soothing, pleasant, and safe.

Test Kloria on a boil or open sore. Notice how it destroys the pus infection, ends the soreness and heals with magic quickness. For cuts and burns, it insures quicker, cleaner healing than iodine or any old-time antiseptic or salve. As a mouth-wash, it destroys the acid-forming bacteria, thus preventing tooth-decay. As a gargle, see how quickly it relieves sore throat and canker sores. Apply it to sore, bleeding gums (pyorrhea), and see if the soreness and bleeding do not disappear in one week. Harmless, yet more effective than poisonous antiseptics for personal hygiene.

Dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water, and instantly you have, at a cost of a few cents, a large bottle of liquid antiseptic which is clean, colorless, stainless and virtually odorless.

All druggists, 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

Free Sample A sample of Kloria, enough for a convincing test, will be gladly sent free. Write for it. The results will be a revelation.

Pots and pans shine when Old Dutch is around

Just think what Old Dutch Cleanser is and how it works, and you'll understand why it saves you so much effort and time and money. It cleans effectively because it is a natural cleansing substance composed of soft, flat, flaky particles.

Avoid hard, gritty cleaners; the sharp, chunky particles scratch the surface; dull the finish; make cleaning difficult. Old Dutch being soft, thin flakes gives you many more cleaning units for your money, and makes cleaning safe and easy.

Old Dutch removes the dirt, not the surface. Use it regularly and you won't have to wear yourself out scouring things clean. You'll have everything spotless.

—There's nothing else like Old Dutch

NEW SUIT TESTS OFFICIAL BAN ON RAIL CONTRACTS

What is regarded in some quarters as, in effect, a renewed attack on the existence of the United States railroad labor board will be launched in District court here today through action seeking to nullify the board's decisions prohibiting carriers from letting work out to contractors.

The move has originated through a petition filed by the Railway Service and Supply corporation of Indianapolis for a writ of certiorari to require the labor board to bring before the court the record of the contract case involving the Big Four Railway company. Hearing on the petition is scheduled for today, before Judge George Carpenter.

Called Entering Wedge.

While no railway is technically a party to the controversy, many observers predicted the case, if finally decided in favor of the petitioning contractor, would prove an entering wedge for legalizing the contract system, thus stripping the labor board of much of its power to control wages and working conditions.

While no official comment was forthcoming, it was indicated at the railroad labor board offices late yesterday that a motion to postpone the hearing would be made, pending action on the board's appeal to the department of justice at Washington for legal aid.

The Railway Service and Supply corporation is acting in the interest of present and prospective contracts with the Big Four railway for freight car and locomotive repair work. The petition cites unsuccessful negotiations of the carrier with the federated shop crafts in an effort to substitute the piecework system for the time work basis of pay. This proposal was rejected by the union chiefs early this year, according to the petition.

Last March the Big Four let much of its repair work out to the petitioning contractor. Whereupon the federated shop crafts brought the case before the labor board, which early last month ruled the carrier had violated the transportation act, in so far as it had removed employés from the jurisdiction of the board.

Though not directly a party to the original dispute, the petitioning contractor contends it has been injured. It alleges the board exceeded its authority in this case and prays a complete review by the federal court.

Representatives of the carriers have in the past maintained that the "right to contract" has been the chief stake in the "farming out" cases. According to the present petitioner, the contracts now involved have brought a saving to the carrier "in excess of $25,000 per month and has also proved profitable to the petitioner."

KNOWLTON AMES SUED; WIFE SAYS HE DESERTED HER

Knowlton L. Ames, president of the Booth Fisheries company, was yesterday made defendant in a suit for divorce filed in the Superior court by Mrs. Adelaide Schroeder Ames, 936 Lake Shore drive.

Ames, in the bill filed by Attorney Robert N. Holt, is alleged to have "willfully deserted" his home on June 15, 1920, after twenty-seven years of married life. The couple were married on Jan. 18, 1893, in Brooklyn, N. Y., and have three children, Knowlton L. Ames Jr., 28 years old; John D. Ames, 18, and Rosemary Ames, 16 years old. Custody of the two minor children with suitable alimony for the support of them as well as herself is sought by Mrs. Ames.

In addition to the Chicago Athletic association, Ames, formerly known as "Snake" Ames and a famous Princeton athlete, is a member of the University and Glen View Golf clubs.

COUNTY BUILDING CLEANING COST FAR ABOVE CITY'S

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The city hall and the county building are twin structures. Same design, same length, same height, same cubic contents, and about the same floor space. Yet the cost of cleaning and heating the two buildings is different, although both claim to pay the union scale.

The county building pay roll is swollen more than $50,000, in comparison with that of the city hall, where the Thompson-Lundin administration has established no records for economy.

Contrast of Costs.

Building.	Jobs.	Pay rolls.
County	223	$329,293
City	169	265,800
County excess	54	$ 57,563

The county's excess would probably be twice $57,563, compared with the cost, if a private contractor were given the job of cleaning and heating the county building. The building managers' association could supply some estimates of the reasonable cost of the county building which would indicate more authoritatively, how much money is being wasted on the pay roll in cleaning and heating the county building.

Perhaps there is a trifle more floor space to be cleaned in the city hall than in the county building, because part of the vault floor is used by the city for offices. But the county has 143 janitors and janitresses, and the city only ninety-seven. Of course, this can be plausibly explained, as is frequently done in political affairs.

One explanation, which doesn't explain, is that the county works its cleaners fewer hours and at a lower wage; but the county janitor pay roll this year is $166,596, while that of the city is only $123,934. Another explanation is that the city floors are mostly covered with linoleum, while the county has many wooden floors which must be scrubbed, while the city floors can be mopped. If that is true, it is asked what prevents the county from using part of the $42,612 excess in janitors' pay roll to buy a few widths of linoleum?

Same Number of Windows.

Both the city hall and the county building have exactly the same number of windows. The city employs ten window washers, while the county pays sixteen. The city's pay roll for window washers this year is $15,600, the county's $23,076—nearly 48 per cent over the city. Still other comparisons could be made.

Incidentally, the janitor service is not the county's only swollen pay roll. For the pay roll conditions in the county building both the judges of the Circuit court and the county commissioners share the responsibility—the judges for the number of jobs and the commissioners for the compensation paid.

Efficiency Staff Discussed.

The judges are considering the appointment of an efficiency staff to aid them. Perhaps announcement of the program will be made today. President-elect Anton J. Cermak of the county board also sees that the "public is being flimflammed," and said yesterday that the janitors' jobs should be reduced.

For the control of the janitors' jobs, Mr. Cermak and the sheriff will stage a legal battle this morning before Judges Fuller, Lynch and Arnold, the employment committee of the Circuit court. The sheriff now has the jobs and Mr. Cermak wants them. The total number of jobs in both county and Criminal court buildings, is 231 and the pay roll this year totals $423,477. No one has started a battle on the size of this payroll which is generally considered of far more importance than who controls it.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES RELATING TO ILLINOIS BONUS FOR SOLDIERS

Following are some of the questions concerning the payment of the Illinois Soldiers' bonus which have come to The Tribune and the answers thereto:

Q.—Where can I find out what address I gave as my home, at the time of my enlistment in the army? I am not sure whether I gave it as Montana or Illinois. I enlisted in Montana, but the discharge does not disclose this fact. Did the state of Montana pass its bonus bill at this last election? Are disabled and wounded soldiers now in training entitled to the bonus? C. E. L.

A.—Records of enlistment and army service are kept in the office of the Adjutant General, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C.

The Montana bonus bill passed at the last general election.

Yes.

Q.—I was a resident of Pennsylvania up to Jan. 6, 1922, but served in the army for eight months and now live in Illinois. Does that make me eligible to the bonus? N. S.

A.—No. Not the Illinois bonus.

Q.—I am an ex-soldier. I enlisted in Illinois and lived in Chicago for about one year after discharge; but since then have made my home in Houston, Tex. Am I eligible to the bonus? E. D. C.

A.—Yes, according to the present ruling the place of residence after discharge has no bearing on eligibility.

Q.—My home is at present in Tennessee but I am a resident of Illinois. I have been trying to get one of the Illinois bonus application blanks but so far have not succeeded. If you have them please send me one or tell me where to write for one. L. K.

A.—The official application blanks for the bonus have not been printed yet, but when they are ready a supply will be available at this office. Send us a stamped envelope with the address to which you wish the blank mailed and we will mail one to you as soon as we receive them.

"ARMY TRAINING WORTH WHILE IN PEACE OR IN WAR"

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 28.—An appeal to the nation to "look cold, hard facts in the face and not forget our obligations in the blind hope that we may not again engage in armed conflict," marked an address delivered here today by Gen. Pershing under the auspices of the American Defense society.

"At present we do not see definite indications, but none of us can tell whether we shall have war in five, ten, or twenty years," Gen. Pershing said. "If we knew now to a certainty that armed conflict would come in twenty years, there would be an immediate demand for preparations. Yet that is the approximate interval that we have had in the past between major wars. There is no reason to think that the immediate future will bring about a cessation of war, even though it was said that we entered the world war to bring about the end of war."

Gen. Pershing devoted most of his address to the value of military training as a school of good citizenship, citing in this connection the favorable findings of the recent educational conference in Washington.

The chief of staff stressed again the draft statistics which showed fifty per cent of the young men called out during the war to have been physically subnormal, largely defects curable by proper training.

"I do not suggest military training as a cure for all civic ailments," Gen. Pershing said, "but I firmly believe it inculcates ideals of honor and duty in our young men that must constitute a most valuable national asset."

Gen. Pershing said that if the army was to succeed "in spreading the benefits of the training offered, it will only be through the coöperation and support of the people." During the present year, he said, expenditures on all phases of the military establishment ran a little more than $2.00 per capita.

It was to be hoped, the general said, that it would soon be practicable to furnish military training to greater numbers of men every year.

Why?

Because they know that people today are paying toll with the health and beauty of their teeth to two deadly enemies. And protection from one alone is not enough.

One destructive force is dental mucin, often called film. It attacks the surfaces of the teeth, making them yellow and ugly. The second is the acid decay that comes from the fermentation of tiny food particles in the crevices between teeth.

The Sanitol method now offers protection from both these dread forces.

Clears away film

Sanitol Tooth Paste keeps the teeth smooth and beautifully white. First, the glycerine in Sanitol softens, then the fine chalk entirely clears away the ugly dental mucin. By removing this filmy coating it restores the whiteness to teeth that have already begun to yellow. It contains nothing that will injure the teeth.

Counteracts fermentation

Sanitol Liquid Antiseptic floods into all nooks and crevices cleansing them antiseptically—checking the decay from acids of fermentation. Besides it makes gums firmer and healthier, sweetens the breath and is an excellent gargle for the throat.

You'll actually enjoy using both. You will soon see your teeth grow whiter.

TEARNEY ALLEGES SOX FAVORED IN LETTER TO LANDIS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Steamed up over decisions involving the Western and Three Eyes leagues, of which he is president, Al Tearney yesterday heaved a hatful of hot words at Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis. In a letter of great length Tearney charged that one of his circuits had been discriminated against in favor of the White Sox; that the same club should be punished for playing against an ineligible, and that the commissioner's office had not concerned itself with ascertaining true facts in the same case.

A. R. TEARNEY.

Tearney's protest is a new chapter to the Sox-Ottawa, Ill., exhibition played last August. The Sox accepted the game after the Ottawa roster had been O. K.'d by the commissioner. After the game it was learned the Sox had played against an ineligible. Pitcher Tim Murchison. Tearney now offers proof that the Sox [illegible] not only recognized Murchison before the game but that the umpire announced the pitcher's real name in advance, and morning newspapers of that day imparted the same information.

Takes Up Cudgels for Peoria.

Tearney's interest in the case is due to the fact that the Peoria Three Eyes club, prior to the Sox game at Ottawa, had asked for permission to play the Springfield, Ill., Sangamons. The commissioner's office denied the request on the ground that Springfield harbored ineligibles. Peoria was dickering with Ottawa at the same time, and when the Springfield game was canceled Peoria, knowing the status of Ottawa, halted negotiations. Subsequently the White Sox were given permission to play there.

In his letter Tearney touched on the umpire's announcement by saying:

"I sent to Marseilles, Ill., for the umpire who had charge of the game and who is prepared to make an affidavit that, so far as he was concerned, there was no secrecy as to the batteries. The slip given him bore the names of Murchison and Graham, and he announced them as the battery for Ottawa, with the consent of the management of the White Sox club."

Claims Roster Misleading.

After the game was played the matter was brought to Landis' attention. No penalty was inflicted on the Sox on the theory that both the club and the commissioner had been misled by the roster submitted in advance, which had Murchison under an assumed name. Tearney's statement, however, indicates the Sox went into the game with full knowledge of Murchison's identity, and he insists they should have withdrawn immediately upon learning the facts. The Sox players denied knowing the ineligible.

In concluding his complaint Tearney mentions the decision in the case of Player Elch, awarded to the White Sox. He says:

"It is coincidental that the Chicago Americans should be so vitally concerned in two grievances that affect leagues I am interested in, and the point in dispute appears to be just as unfair to the Peoria club as your recent decision in the matter of Player Elch does to the Sioux City club of the Western league.

Charges Discrimination.

"If it is your intention to allow a club in organized baseball the right to play with a club that harbors ineligibles, despite your avowal for publication that you are immutably opposed to such practices, then I feel positive the Peoria club was discriminated against unjustly."

Outfielder Elch was awarded to the Sox on the basis of a contract giving the Chicago club second choice of the team. It developed that no first choice had been given and the Sox were granted first pick. They took Elch. While the investigation was on Elch was sold to Pittsburgh for $10,000, but the money was ordered refunded. The Sox paid about $2,500 for the man.

LANDIS TOLD OF LETTER

When informed of the letter about to be received, Landis offered no reply. Secretary O'Connor, however, stated the commissioner's office had no knowledge of Murchison's name having been announced in advance of the game. He defended the Elch decision by saying that so long as there was no first choice the Sox's second claim automatically became first.

FARM and GARDEN BY FRANK RIDGWAY

BUGS ALARM ENTOMOLOGISTS AND CROP SPECIALISTS.

CROP specialists and entomologists are becoming alarmed over the seriousness of the chinch bug infestation in the middle west. They threaten damage in parts of Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, and Illinois. Illinois state entomologist W. P. Flint says that unless the chinch bugs are checked, the infestation threatens to spread over the entire Mississippi valley and cause a recurrence of the losses of 1887, which amounted to nearly $100,000,000.

Many think the chinch bugs' work is limited to the southern and central part of the state, but surveys show that this pest has multiplied and spread in seventy-five counties in Illinois. It is found as far north as Du Page county, only a few miles from the Illinois-Wisconsin line, and south to Johnson county. However, in the extreme southern and northern parts of the state the infestation is light.

Mr. Flint says the bugs do not feed on legumes—soy beans, sweet and red clover, cow peas, and similar crops—or in fact any crop that is not a grass. They destroy and greatly reduce the yield of such crops as corn, barley, spring wheat, oats, millet, winter wheat, rye, broom corn, sorghum, and other grass crops.

Pal Moore, local bantamweight who has won more no decision contests over champions than any other 118 pounder of recent years, and Harold Smith, pride of the stockyards, will show their wares to a capacity crowd before the Midway A. C. of the south side tonight. They will box ten rounds and will scale 118 pounds at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Arcade gymnasium.

HAROLD SMITH.

It will be Moore's first bout since Champion Joe Lynch all but knocked him out at Michigan City last Labor day. Pal had a couple of ribs fractured in that fracas and has not done any boxing since. Before he closed with Smith he made sure he can take a socking around the midsection.

Smith Harder Puncher.

Smith has not done any fighting to speak of since he defeated Bud Taylor at East Chicago early in the fall. Harold surprised the fans by sending Taylor to the canvas and there is no telling what would have happened if the bell had not sounded when the referee had tolled off the four count, with Taylor trying vainly to get up.

It should be an interesting contest between two sparkling bantamweights. Smith is by far the harder puncher and will undoubtedly try to put Moore away, something which no other bantamweight has done since Moore has been recognized as one of the leaders of his class. The main event will be supported by two other bouts.

Lynch May Box Anderson.

Eddie Meade, manager of Champion Joe Lynch, returned from Milwaukee and asserted articles have been signed and forfeits posted to bind the ten round bout between the champion and Joe Sanger. The match will be conducted by Otto Borchard and will be held in the Auditorium on Dec. 7.

Joe Lynch and his manager leave today for Indianapolis, where the champion will step ten rounds with Frankie Daly tomorrow night. Lynch will return to Chicago on Friday to resume training for the Sangor match.

Ross Murphy, former amateur lightweight champion, accompanied by Barney Abel, will leave tonight for Indianapolis where he meets Bill Hennessey of Denver in the eight round semi-windup of Joe Lynch's go with Frankie Daly there tomorrow night.

Summit-Argo post of the American Legion, which is staging a boxing show at the Argo Theater tomorrow afternoon, announces its full card: Jack McCarthy vs. Jimmy Young, six rounds at 135 pounds; Pal Marks vs. Frankie Forest, six rounds at 110 pounds; Jake Henke vs. Johnny McAvoy, six rounds at 120 pounds. The first bout starts at 4:30 p. m. In the windup Jimmy Brady faces Young Tommy White for ten rounds.

AMONG THE DUCK HUNTERS.

WITH the birds still abundant and flying and the season's fans still on the job, there are mighty few hunters complaining about the shooting this fall. If gunners in other states are having as much fun as the Illinois boys, then this season sure has been a dandy, as reports from downstaters indicate that it is almost too easy to get the limit on mallards.

J. D. Lannon writes us from Benenim, Ill., about the shooting near Chillicothe, where the birds have been plentiful. Says J. D.:

"We have had excellent shooting all fall and find no trouble in getting the limit of mallards in a few minutes in a blind. Of course, if we wanted to shoot into flocks on the set, we could get the limit in a couple of shots any time during the last two weeks. But nobody shoots that way down here.

"We have gone to some trouble with live decoys and feeding, and many bushels of grain have been put out. Moreover, on our shooting grounds we took care not to shoot early in the morning, when the ducks come in, but kept in our blind and waited for the pairs of mallards that came in during the morning and evening.

"After many seasons of hunting I must say that this one is the best of all. By the way, yesterday I killed a mallard hen which had a band around its leg with 'Biol. Surv. 102495.' Wish you would tell me what this means."

NOTE.—The hen killed was one trapped and banded by the biological survey and they want you to send them the number of the bird and also information on where it was killed.

STANISLAUS AND GOBAR GRAPPLE HERE ON FRIDAY

Stanislaus Zbyszko, former heavyweight mat champion, will be seen in action Friday night at the Star and Garter for the first time this season. The management announces it had to dig pretty deep into the old bank roll to sign Maharaja Gobar, Hindu grappler, as his opponent. The pair will battle six rounds to a fall or decision. Gobar is a strapping big man, and according to the management he delivers the goods. The Furness-Reuben tilt has been put off for a week at the request of Reuben, who says his condition does not justify him in taking on Furness on such short notice. Paul Prehn will meet some worthy opponents in the three round opener.

Heinie Engel of Dubuque, middleweight champion of Iowa, was selected last night by Matchmaker Doc Kreis of the De Molay lodge, Knights of Pythias, to meet Waino Ketonen, the Finnish middleweight, in the semi-windup of the Johnny Meyers-John Klonis decision contest at Ashland Boulevard auditorium Tuesday.

WILLARD TO SHOW COAST HE RATES DEMPSEY MATCH

Portland, Ore., Nov. 28.—Jess Willard, ex-heavyweight champion of the world, will be seen in the northwest in a series of exhibition matches which Bobbie Evans, former matchmaker for the Portland boxing commission, is arranging.

Willard, according to Evans, is willing to take on Fred Fulton, Bill Brennan, Floyd Johnson, or any other white heavyweight in exhibition bouts to prove to the public that he really rates a shot at Jack Dempsey.

Lewis vs. Zbyszko for Mat Championship Dec. 14

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28.—Strangler Lewis, world's champion, and Stanislaus Zbyszko, former champion, were signed to wrestle in a three fall finish championship match here Dec. 14, it was announced tonight.

PYOTT ELECTED '23 CAPTAIN OF MAROON ELEVEN

STAGG ISN'T THROPGH

AMOS ALONZO STAGG, 61 years old, intends to continue coaching football at the Midway at least until he is 70. When admirers of the "Old Man" carried reports to him that his critics had suggested that he contemplated resigning Stagg, it was revealed last night, declared: "You can tell those fellows to come out here ten years from now, if they're still alive, and they'll find me on the job."

BY TED ISERMAN.

At the annual election of the University of Chicago football squad yesterday Jim Pyott, for two years star half back on the Midway eleven, was elected captain. Pyott's nearest competitor for the honor was John Thomas, Ralph Kink and Willis Zorn being other nominees.

Pyott's outstanding performances during the last season, especially as an open field runner and passing expert, combined with his knowledge of the game, were felt to qualify him for the leadership of the 1923 aggregation, to succeed Capt. Hal Lewis.

The new captain, like his predecessor, hails from Oak Park, where he began playing football in his senior year. After a year at Dartmouth in 1919 he came to Chicago and played on the freshman team at the Midway. This is his second year on the varsity. Pyott also is one of the basketball possibilities, and is one of the mainstays of the Maroon track squad. Pyott weighs 169 pounds.

Additional honors were awarded seven Maroon footballers yesterday, minor "C's" being received by the following men: Felice Caruso, Harris Barnes, Paul Burgess, "Wit" Wilcox, Joe Duggan, "Christie" Christianson, Gerden Strauss, "Chick" Wolfe, A. A. Stagg Jr., Law and Van Sundegriff.

Nineteen Major "C's."

On account of a reporter's misinterpretation of yesterday's report of awards made by the University of Chicago to varsity football men, Lewis McMasters, Rodney Miller, Howard Spier, and Ralph Leggette were accredited with having received the minor or old English letter. These men received the major "C" "for ability and service extending over a period of two or three years," making a total of nineteen letters awarded.

Lloyd Rohrke, Franklin Gowdy, Campbell Dickens, Elmer Lampe, Harry Thomas, and Joe Pondelik were awarded their football letters for the first time this season for "superior ability." Capt. Lewis, King, Zorn, Pyott, Harold Fletcher, Strohmeier, John Thomas, Aubrey Dawson and Alex Proudfoot, old "C" men, being awarded the honor.

600 FANS AND BAND TO ELGIN WITH WHEATON

The undefeated Wheaton High school team, champion of the Little Seven, with 600 rooters and a thirty piece band, will leave tomorrow noon for its Thanksgiving day game with Elgin. Wheaton, under Coach Welden, has had a brilliant season, winning eight straight games for a total of 374 points, to its opponents' 27.

Coach Weldon and eighteen players will make the trip, seven of whom—Fraser, Lake, Gates, Capt. Bollinger, Bennett, K. Brundage, and Colby, all regulars—are playing their last game in the orange and black uniform. The squad is in excellent trim, and will take the field with the strongest possible lineup. Elgin, which defeated St. Ansonia, Conn., scholastics, is reported in fine fettle.

HARVARD DROPS CENTRE; CUTS GRID SCHEDULE

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 28.—The Harvard football schedule for next fall will be of eight games, one less than this year. Four will be contests classed as heavy. Princeton will be played as usual, two weeks before the game with Yale. Centre will be dropped. Virginia or North Carolina may take the place of Florida. Dartmouth, in all probability, will be retained under another one year arrangement. The later start probably will prevent a meeting with Holy Cross. Brown also is on the schedule for a game previous to the Yale contest.

Scotch Curlers Coming to Chicago in February

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Curlers from Edinburgh and other centers of Scotland will invade America early in January. The tentative schedule calls for the first appearance of the invaders at New Glasgow, Canada, Jan. 4. PREVIOUS SCORES

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Nov. 28.—The Notre Dame football team has won four of the seven annual games played with Nebraska since relations were started in 1915. One was a tie. Since K. K. Rockne became Notre Dame coach the local eleven won every game. The previous scores:

1916—Notre Dame, 20; Nebraska, 0.
1917—Notre Dame, 0; Nebraska, 7.
*1918—Notre Dame, 0; Nebraska, 0.
1919—Notre Dame, 14; Nebraska, 9.
1920—Notre Dame, 16; Nebraska, 7.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

The Notre Dame football eleven, one of the undefeated teams of the country, which will meet Nebraska at Lincoln tomorrow in what promises to be one of the hardest fought contests of the year west of the Mississippi river, passed through Chicago last evening on it way to the battlefield.

FRED DAWSON. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The squad was in charge of Coach Knute Rockne, who has taken every man of promise on the trip. The Notre Dame mentor is aware of the great power of Nebraska, and is prepared to substitute enough men to stem the tide of defeat, should the Cornhuskers get the jump on his men. Aside from a few bruises, the coach asserted his men are in as good condition as can be expected considering the hard schedule which will be completed with the playing of tomorrow's game.

Notre Dame Ready, Rockne Says.

"I am not making any predictions," Rockne said. "If we are beaten, Nebraska will know it has been in a football game. My kids are one of the best fighting teams I ever coached at Notre Dame. They don't know the meaning of the word defeat, and most of them feel sure they will win. I wish I felt the same way, because I know the great offensive and defensive power of Coach Dawson's men."

The team left over the Burlington at 6:15 o'clock last evening, and will arrive in Lincoln about noon today. The squad will be put through a strenuous drill on the Cornhusker field this afternoon, and then rest until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when the game will be called.

Nebraska Has Powerful Team.

Nebraska has one of its best teams in history. It has been developed to a high point of efficiency by Fred Dawson, former Princeton player, who knows a lot of football. The Cornhuskers have defeated all opponents in the Missouri Valley conference, and according to critics in the section are the champion of the valley association.

A lot of interest will center around the game between Cornell and Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. The Ithacans have not been defeated this year.

ST. JOHN ELEVEN TO PLAY EASTERN PREPS TOMORROW

Delafield, Wis., Nov. 28.—St. John's Military academy, last year's middle west prep champions, and St. John's Manlius of Syracuse, N. Y., claimant of the eastern academic championship, will meet here on Smythe field on Thanksgiving day in what is expected to be one of the hardest fought intersectional football matches played this season. Both teams are undefeated in their class and have completed schedules of matches with college and university freshmen elevens, each team having lost one game.

Moline-Davenport Game Steams Up "Quad Cities"

Moline, Ill., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Five thousand football fans of the "Quad cities" and vicinity are expected to see Coach Sennett's Moline high school eleven and Davenport battle here Thanksgiving day in the annual contest between the two schools.

Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The Williams football team today elected James B. Robinson, '24, captain for next year. He has played two years at guard. His home is Wilkesbarre, Pa.

HUNGATE BUTLER LEADER.

MUSTANGS TO PLAY ALCUINS.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

BIG TEN TITLE.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR YOST'S statement that Michigan contentedly will accept equal claim with Iowa for the Big Ten football championship is a sportsmanlike as well as sane decision.

Of course they think Wolverines would beat Hawkeyes if a meeting were possible—just as Iowa men think Coach Jones' pupils would beat Michigan—and we respect this loyalty of alumni.

Since no test is possible, a tie is the most logical solution. Comparative scores, which favor Michigan, are not a satisfactory method of arriving at conclusions, for you can prove almost anything by them.

It is true Michigan had a somewhat harder schedule than Iowa in the west. Hawkeyes are touchy on that subject. We do not blame them. If Iowa had refused to meet stronger elevens it might be an argument. But, since Iowa accepted all comers, and even went east to find an opponent, it would be unfair to criticise because some Big Ten elevens could not find a place for the Hawkeyes on their schedule.

Michigan defeated Case, 48 to 0; Ohio State, 19 to 0; Illinois, 54 to 0; Michigan Aggies, 63 to 0; Wisconsin, 13 to 6; Minnesota, 16 to 7, and tied Vanderbilt, 0 to 0.

Iowa defeated Knox, 61 to 0; Yale, 6 to 0; Illinois, 8 to 7; Purdue, 56 to 0; Minnesota, 28 to 14; Ohio State, 12 to 9; Northwestern, 37 to 3.

Modern Degeneration.

When he took his weekly bride,
He would have the royal axe remove her tongue.

As I read I wildly laughed
At the crude effective craft
Of that heathenish and single-minded prince.
He was sure of silence then,
But the later race of men
Have endured the brunt of vengeance ever since.

FOOTBALL CAMPS

AT U. OF PENNSYLVANIA.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Changing its plans at the last minute, Penn went to Jack Dempsey's old Airport training grounds this afternoon to work out instead of limbering up on the links of the Seaview Golf club at Absecon. Penn will start the Cornell game with Carl Ertresvaag, veteran right end, on the side lines. He injured his right knee in practice Monday. Clarence Westgate, star freshman end last year, probably will start in Ertresvaag's place. Another change may be made in the back field, as Rae McGraw is not moving around as frisky as the coaches would like. He was used in the signal drill, but it is evident that he is still troubled with a bad ankle. George Sullivan is likely to take his place.

AT CORNELL.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The Cornell football team left Ithaca for Philadelphia tonight after a big sendoff by the undergraduate body. The varsity's final drill at home was a brisk warming up outdoors under the flood lights, followed by a short but lively signal drill in the baseball cage. Cornell is perpared for what coaches and players freely concede will be the big battle of the year. Buckley and Henderson alternated again at left end, with Gou nlock on right wing. Hanson and Sundstrom played tackles, Flynn and Rollo, guards; Richards, center; Pfann, quarter back; Eddie Kaw and Barney, half backs, and Cassidy, full back.

BEAR, CARD ELEVENS IN CLASH TOMORROW

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Before Chicago football fans tuck in their napkins and reach for their drumsticks tomorrow the postgraduate champion ship of Chicag will be decided.

PADDY DRISCOLL.

After a series of conferences yesterday the Bears and Cardinals, both aspirants to the national pro league pennant, agreed to play the Thanksgiving day game at White Sox park.

The game is scheduled to start at 11 o'clock so that fans can get home to Thanksgiving dinner. Arrangements were made hastily with the elevated lines to carry porth side fans down to the Sox park.

Honors Are Even Up.

The game will decide the argument between north and south sides, which has existed for three years. Two years ago they played two games, each winning one. Last fall when they clashed at Cubs park (the Bears being virtually the Staleys of 1921) the result was a scoreless tie. The 1921 game was played in a sea of mud, which prevented any real test of form.

Manager Chris O'Brien has ordered final practice for the Cardinals this afternoon at the Sox park. The players will get together and smooth off plays to be used in the game. The Bears will take their final drill at the Cubs' park. Both squads will report at 2 o'clock.

As both Bears and Cardinals stand high in the National Football league the Thanksgiving game should decide their relative standings.

The promise of a fast field for the game means a running duel between Driscoll and Pete Stinchcomb and should be a thriller. Stinchcomb at Ohio State was adjudged all American and Driscoll has become a much better player than he was when at Northwestern, when he was a candidate for that honor.

Both Lines Powerful.

The back fields of the Bears and Cardinals have given rise to arguments as partisan as ever existed between Cubs and Sox. On playing form they appear about equal.

The test will be in the lines. Every forward in the two elevens won honors at his college. There will be seventeen universities represented by their postgrads on the two teams, each a star when at college, and there will be at least five all-Americans in play during the game.

Next Sunday the Bears will play Toledo at Cubs park, and the test of two hard games in four days will be a hard one. Toledo has secured the famous Red Roberts of Centre college for the rest of the season.

IOWA ASKS BADGERS FOR DATE ON GRIDIRON SCHEDULE NEXT YEAR

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 28.—The University of Iowa has wired Wisconsin asking that the two institutions arrange their football schedules so that they may meet on the gridiron next year, T. E. Jones, athletic director, announced today. Director Jones at once replied that the Badgers would be glad to consider the proposed contest.

Schedules of the western conference for the next season are to be arranged at Chicago on Saturday. The athletic department said that Wisconsin will play Indiana at Bloomington, Michigan and Minnesota at Madison, either Illinois or Iowa on the latter's field, and meet Chicago at Chicago.

ELECT PURPLE GRID CAPTAIN NEXT WEEK

Election of a captain for the 1923 Purple football team will take place early next week at a banquet tendered by the university, according to Athletic Director Dana M. Evans and Capt. Jimmie Paterson, who are in charge of the arrangements. Letter winners will also be announced and a general canvass of next year's prospects taken.

Ole Magnuson, who has this year been assisting Maury Kent, coach the frosh, yesterday announced that he would return to school next fall as a player instead of a coach. Magnuson was a regular guard last year. In the 1921 Maroon contest he received an injury to his leg which made it impossible for him to play this year. His return will materially strengthen the Purple wall for 1923.

Bill Johnson, Al Kelley, Bob Wienecke, Bill McElwain, Larry Horton, Tom Wolfe, Charles Kelly and Bob Blythe of the disbanding squad, will also be eligible for another year of play.

Northwestern's satisfaction with the results of the last season was expressed editorially by the Daily Northwestern yesterday. "Although the closing of Northwestern's football season with a somewhat one sided defeat was a disappointment to Purple followers," declares the editorial, "some consolation may be obtained by viewing the situation from another angle.

"In some respects Northwestern has done wonders. The Purple team has scored on every one of its opponents. The record that Northwestern has made, is not an outstanding one, yet it is a great improvement over the performances of other years."

CITY PREPS LAY PLANS FOR BIG BASKET SEASON

BY GEORGE BUCKLEY.

Following the most successful football season in the history of the sport, indications point to a record year of basketball for the Chicago Public School Athletic league. At the meeting held yesterday, 22 high schools entered forty teams, eighteen heavyweight and twenty-two lightweight, for the season which opens soon after the Christmas holidays.

E. C. DELAPORTE

The schools have been divided into four divisions, north, south, west and central, and the preliminary round of games will be contested on a home and home basis. Two quintets from each section will qualify for the semi-final round tilts, and four for the final bracket, all of which will be played in neutral gymnasiums. The team with the highest percentage after the final round will be awarded the championship. The schedule will be available within the next few days, E. C. Delaporte, director of athletics, announced last night.

Following is the sectional classification:

North—Waller, Schurz, Senn, Hibbard, Lane, and Lake View.

Steps leading to a standard system of awarding of emblems in all high schools are well under way and the suggested eligibility requirements will be mailed to the schools shortly.

HYDE PARK TO LEAVE

Hyde Park's powerful eleven, champions of the Chicago Public School Athletic league by one of the most decisive margins ever scored in a championship game, will entrain tomorrow morning at 10:25 over the Santa Fé for its clash with Sapulpa at Tulsa, Okla., Saturday.

The party of twenty-two players, Coach Scanlon, two managers, and two teachers will reach its destination on the morning of the game and start the homeward journey Sunday, arriving in Chicago 7 a. m. Monday.

Sapulpa Has Fine Record.

The team emerged from the title clash with Senn last week in excellent shape with the exception of McGivern, half, and Sinkler, guard, but both will be in condition to play Saturday.

If the standard of play in the two sections is nearly equal the Blue and White team will face a formidable opponent, according to its record. Sapulpa played ten games this season, winning eight and losing two. It amassed 306 points to its opponents' 46, and is a hard fighting eleven of average weight. Hyde Park, however, is confident of its ability to bring home a victory.

Other Teams to Leave.

Lindblom, considered by many to be the equal of Hyde Park, will leave for its Saturday game with Stamford, Conn., tomorrow, and Englewood also is expected to depart at the same time for its clash with Washington High of Sioux Falls, S. D. Crane Tech, scheduled to engage Lansing (Mich.) High, probably will leave Friday. All three teams are reported to be in fine trim.

ARROWS POINT TO RECORD.

Gustav A. Zadek, manager of the Garfield Arrows, takes exception to a score printed in Monday's Tribune, which stated that the Wizard Arrow had defeated the Garfield eleven, 112 to 0. Garfield Arrows played Racine Tigers, 17 to 0 Zadek says and never met the Wizard Arrow team.

". . . the only truthful information that comes to this country is through The Chicago Tribune. All other news items that reach the American public are of British manufacture and unreliable. . ."

Rear Admiral C. M. Chester.

AT ENORMOUS expense The Chicago Tribune maintains its own reporters at all important sources of world news. The following letter, voluntarily written by Rear Admiral C. M. Chester of the United States Navy, proves how well justified is this policy of The Chicago Tribune:

Editor of The Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.

Having recently returned from an extended visit to Constantinople, where I was able to see much of the methods prevailing in Turkey for the collection and dissemination of news reports, I have come to learn that the only truthful information that comes to this country is through The Chicago Tribune. All other news items that reach the American public are of British manufacture and unreliable. Your correspondents in Turkey, I know, have had a hard time to collect correct information, and their bravery is commendable.

Very truly yours,
C. M. CHESTER,

THE FOREIGN NEWS SERVICE of The Chicago Tribune is a vital constructive force working for American welfare. It furnishes truthful reports of world events on which the American people can formulate sound decisions.

Compare our situation with that of European countries which, because of the intrigues of their diplomats or the lack of energy and initiative of their newspapers, are given only hand picked news designed to leave the public in ignorance or to mislead. People so misinformed can be, and are, led blindly into all sorts of international complications and errors which they could avoid if they knew the truth.

It is difficult enough, even with accurate knowledge, to find one's way through the complications of European and Asiatic racial and nationalistic intrigues. It is impossible without accurate knowledge. The Chicago Tribune gives such information. The Tribune may be called pro-Turkish, anti-Russian, pro-British, or pro-German, or anti or pro anything else. That is incidental. The facts speak for themselves. The Tribune does not make them. The Tribune reports them. The Tribune's reporters face privation, hardship, and occasionally persecution to get these facts.

The Chicago Tribune is proud of the many scoops achieved by its men, but their work is most valuable because of the daily routine reporting of unvarnished TRUTH.

The reports of the Foreign News Service of The Chicago Tribune are printed in its New York newspaper—The Daily News—and in many other papers which maintain leased wires into the office of The Chicago Tribune to secure this news. a book about The Chicago Tribune

FOR SEVENTY-FIVE years The Chicago Tribune has been a dynamic force in American life. Therefore the first third of this book, which is devoted to the history of The Chicago Tribune, is of general interest. Many quaint and stirring incidents of Civil War days and earlier are related and the tale is brought down to 1922—including the famous Henry Ford case and the ten million dollar libel suit of the City of Chicago against The Tribune.

Reporting and editorial work have a great fascination for almost all men. Nearly everyone thinks he could run a newspaper and many a millionaire has spent enormous sums for the privilege of being an editor. The second third of "The W G N" tells just how all reportorial and editorial departments of The Chicago Tribune operate. Also how the advertising is secured and how The Chicago Tribune has won such amazing pre-eminence among the newspapers of the world as an advertising medium.

The final third of "The W G N" deals with the production and mechanical problems incident to the printing and distribution of several hundred thousand Tribunes every morning.

Every process from the cutting of spruce logs and the manufacture of newsprint, through the setting of type, the casting of stereotypes, the operation of presses and the distribution of papers is described in detail. "The W G N" is a beautifully printed book of 304 pages with more than one hundred illustrations.

The Marriage Flaw

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

John Corbeyne, one of England's great financiers, is about to be launched on a political career. Arrangements have been made for his return as a member in order that he might take a portfolio as the first minister of credit.

While awaiting Lord Carfax, his campaign manager, and his wife's former guardian, Corbeyne, is disturbed by the news in an afternoon paper of the death in prison of James Carvick, whose deathbed confession revealed that he was Lord Henry Graunham.

A CALL TO THE TELEPHONE.

"Yes, yes, John Corbeyne." His apprehension drove him into impatience. "Who are you?"

"Kathie."

"How are you, John? Sit down, do, and smoke."

"May I ask why you are breaking our agreement?"

He heard her gasp, and realized that he was barking at her. The old controlled exasperation against her seized him.

"What is it you want?" he repeated more calmly.

"I want to see you. I absolutely must see you. I—it's a matter of the most vital importance."

Of vital importance! He remembered the phrase of old. She would use it for any urgent triviality.

"Look here, Katherine, I don't want to be rude, but you're not playing the game. There can't be anything of great importance between us. You must surely see that it is very undesirable for us to meet."

He knew she was going to say that her most desperate need could not be expected to interest him. He cut in—

"Then say it now, please, or write it. The letter will be forwarded through the bank. Mark the envelope 'Private' and I'll write them I'm expecting a letter."

"No." He supposed that she was crying—a nauseating weapon, tears! But instead her voice came quite cool and collected, as though at last the dialogue had reached a point she had rehearsed.

"John, I haven't spoken to you nor written to you for ten years, though I've often wanted to. Won't that make you believe it's not—something silly? I have taken a private sitting room at the Parnassus. You can be here in three minutes. I admit I'm breaking the agreement. Be generous and come."

That was surprisingly sane for Katherine. Corbeyne's irritation ebbed a little. After all, generosity doesn't begin and end with giving money.

"O, very well, I'll come," he said. "Do I ask for you by—er—name? Mrs. Brierly, isn't it?"

The telephone recorded the faint vibration of a bitter laugh. The bitterness was so very audible that Corbeyne suspected the laugh of being highly theatrical.

"I never changed my name, John."

Corbeyne banged down the receiver and went out of the room. He was picking up his hat when Sylvia came downstairs.

"The Jobber is a little excited," she said. "I don't think bedtime is ideal for a romp." She looked at the hat and said nothing.

"I shall be back in about half an hour," he said. It would have been the most natural thing in the world for him to tell her where he was going. How slim and fragrant she was in that clinging blue-gray thing . . .

"In about half an hour," he repeated and hurried from the house.

Sylvia would wonder why he had not mentioned where he was going, he thought, as he strode towards the Parnassus. Well, of course, he would tell her when he came back. But he had not wished to talk about it just then. Was he going to accuse himself of deceiving her? He was in a state of nervous ill temper by the time he reached the hotel.

"Mrs. Brierly is expecting me in her sitting room," he told the reception clerk, and was presently taken there.

On the way up in the lift he wondered why she had chosen the Parnassus. She could not be staying there on five hundred a year. As likely as not she had chosen it for a setting. Perhaps she needed an artistically furnished room for whatever little scene she had planned.

He broke his train of thought. It was not very fair to go and see her in that spirit.

"Mr. Corbeyne, madam."

Corbeyne looked inquiringly round the room as the door closed behind him. It was the conventional hotel sitting room, but shadowy with the long, friendly shadows of late afternoon. His eyes strayed to the window.

"Ah! How d'you do, Katherine?"

She was sitting on the window seat. In this position her face was all but indistinguishable and the strong golden light behind her brought out a queer blue-purple tone in her hair. Unbidden, the recollection flashed upon Corbeyne that she had often maneuvered the sunlight behind her, so as to bring the purple glow out in her raven black hair.

"How are you, John? Sit down, do, and smoke."

Corbeyne winced and obeyed. The intonation, more than the accent, was wrong. Had he never noticed it in the old days? And this affectation of weakness—drooped head, loosely clasped hands, uncertain voice, and the rest of it—it was all vaguely familiar, but, after Sylvia's frank comradeship, more than a little ridiculous. He rebelled instinctively.

"Do you mind sitting somewhere else?" he asked her curtly. "I find it difficult to talk to some one I can't see properly. Short sight, I daresay."

Her immediate, silent obedience surprised him; then, noting her cringing movement as she huddled herself into a chair, the exaggerated timidity of her glance at him, he remembered her pose of old. Heavens, how she brought back the dark years, the poor fool! It had been her one and only inspiration in their married life; to fray his nerves, to drive him from weariness to remonstrance, from remonstrance to wild anger, by pretense that he terrorized her. At first simulated for the neighbors' benefit, it had at last become second nature to her. She would act the weak and trembling captive, panic driven, until in very truth he felt that he could have used physical force upon her. And she had never lost it! Incredible! She had armed herself with the grotesque weapon as he entered. He stared at her, contemptuously curious where once he had been maddened into protest. She was taller than he remembered; of Sylvia's height and of far heavier build. She held herself badly, in deference to her rôle of crouching, cowering, pathetic, misunderstood woman, forlorn in her exile. She was pale, too, but Corbeyne suspected the pallor. Powder, wasn't it? If she were really pale, her lips would be less red. Even her eyes she had touched up a little. A pity, for in their gray depths lurked the ghost of all she might have been. She raised her eyes to him now with the fluttering of lashes that had always registered, in her opinion, the fear of the brute that had spurned her. Corbeyne shifted his position impatiently.

"Well, Katherine?"

With what was obviously meant to be a brave effort, she came to the point. "Have you seen the evening papers yet, John?"

"O! So you wanted to speak about Graunham!" he exclaimed. "Odd that I didn't connect the two ideas. Yes, I've seen the papers."

She nodded and shuddered. It was a violent shudder. It would have entertained the Jobber.

"It was a bit of an eye opener to me—that alias of his," she said. "I heard about it this morning, from a gentleman friend of mine in the press. I went to make inquiries. There's absolutely no doubt. Jim Carvick and Lord Henry Graunham were one and the same."

Corbeyne waited. While he was waiting he observed her dress. Black—rather too transparent. Naturally she would choose black in which to meet again—how would the Paper for the Engaged Girl put it? Ah, yes—" the man to whom she had once been all in all! She was opening her bag. She handed him a typewritten slip. Corbeyne took it and held it with an air of irrelevance, as one holds things to oblige a conjurer.

"Those are the previous convictions of James Carvick, alias Lord Henry Graunham," she said. "Or no—it's the other way about, isn't it?" She laughed unnecessarily, and he detected genuine nervousness in the sound. Had she a purpose, then, beneath the tedious staginess to which she clung so hard?

With a slight shrug he studied the list. It consisted of half a dozen dates against which was written various terms of imprisonment. She had surely not dragged him there merely to gloat over the records of Graunham?

"H'm! In and out of prison, apparently! A pretty hopeless kind of rotter!" he remarked with cold distaste, and was forced to add: "I beg your pardon—I hope I have not hurt your feelings!"

She laughed again, and again he decided that her laugh held a fear of him that was quite apart from her exaggerated pretense of timidity. She laughed as a gambler might who stakes a fortune. She seemed to have dropped the part of hapless victim for a moment.

"Look at the second conviction, John."

He looked at it.

"Three years' penal servitude in nineteen hun——" He interrupted himself. "Eleven years ago, isn't it?" he added.

"Yes." She hunched her shoulders in a way that reminded him of a crouching cat. "Eleven years ago Lord Henry Graunham, under the name of James Carvick, got three years' penal servitude—in August, that was. September of the same year was the month I was s'posed to have been unfaithful to you with him. And you got your divorce on that!"

Lauder Sings Bonny Songs of Scotland

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

The infectious chuckle and fine, rolling baritone that are Sir Harry Lauder's make themselves heard again at the Studebaker this week, bringing vast delight to many who don't care much for the theater ordinarily, but always turn out for the stumpy Scotchman and his crooked cane.

A canny showman, Sir Harry. He has a keen mimetic gift and a rare sense of character—attributes wherein, I suppose, he is to be compared only with such as Chevalier and Yvette Guilbert—but he has, too, an unerring instinct for what his particular public likes. When I got up to leave last evening he was indulging in some moments of homely eloquence anent the cheering virtues of music. Before I reached the door he had everybody carolling happily, to a spirited tune, the sentiment that "Singing Is the Thing to Make You Cheery."

Town hall stuff, no doubt; but they liked it.

His most effective bit of artistry this year is a revival of an old song, not much heard in recent seasons, called "Doughie, the Baker." Here he ambles on the stage, a simple soul, clad in nondescript, flour smeared raiment and clutching a deep dish pie, to tell of certain marital difficulties which both tickle and terrify him. It is a complete and finely shaded impersonation, infinitely droll in its air of sly confidence and rich in the humor of nuance, pause, and facial expression.

Many other ditties he sings, a few of them new, most of them old—the rollicking horse kilties' song, "She's Ma Daisy," which everybody knows; the plaintive sailor croon, "There Is Somebody Waiting for Me"; a swinging ballad about "Bella the Belle o' Dunoon," and so on. As always, he pauses between verses to spin absurd yarns or prance about in lumbering travesty of the light fantastic. And as always, he brings with him a bit of vaudeville which goes best, probably, on the one night stands.

If you would see and hear him you must hurry, for he stays only until Saturday night.

Andreyev Play Coming; Notes.

Leonid Andreyev's strange play, "He Who Gets Slapped," was given appointment at the Playhouse yesterday, and will arrive there next Monday evening, succeeding "At the End of the World," which departs at the end of this week. This dramatic oddity ranks with "Liliom" as one of the New York Theater guild's more notable productions, and has had great success in the east. It deals in an imaginative vein with events among the performers in a French circus, the central figure, played by Richard Bennett, being that of a man of mystery who assumes the rôle of a clown as a sort of intellectual penance.

The Hull House players will begin their season at the Hull House theater this week with a production of Louis K. Anspacher's "The Unchastened Woman," played some years ago by Miss Emily Stevens. Three performances will be given, on Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon.

Miss Grace George, heading a cast of three in the Paul Geraldy play, "To Love," begins next week a tour which, it is promised, will bring her to Chicago for the holidays or soon thereafter.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question Lieut. Dan Lynch, 4443 Washington boulevard, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Where Asked.

The Answers.

A. W. Malek, 922 Crescent place, real estate — They should absolutely. There is an order to all police to enforce this rule. Pedestrian and autoist alike should strictly obey policemen's signals at crossings in the loop as well as at busy outlying intersections.

Miss Pauline Ross, 824 Edgecomb place, demonstrator — They certainly should. It would help the pedestrian and the man at the wheel. If the pedestrian followed the whistle as the autoist does everything would move systematically and valuable time would be saved.

Arthur E. Weber, 803 Sheridan road, bacteriologist — I see no reason why pedestrians should not obey policemen's signals at all times. They should at least be compelled to do so during the holidays because of the greater congestion and resulting increase of dangers during that period.

Miss Louise M. Davis, 854 Wilson avenue, home girl—Certainly pedestrians should obey the whistle. At best, even in ordinary times, it is difficult to avoid accidents in getting about. Both pedestrian and autoist would make better time downtown if all followed the whistle.

E. H. Broschart, 5861 Glenwood avenue, real estate mortgages—Both should observe the signals, not only during the holiday rush, but at all times. It seems to me officers are lenient with both motorist and pedestrian. The sooner traffic rules are enforced all alike the better it will be for everybody.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

It was certainly one wonderful night! No sooner had the hero come back from China, where, as he says by way of subtitle, he learned to mind his own business, than the merry god of Chance began to shoot dice with him. He lost, in so far as he was precipitately precipitated into the affairs of a number of other people and won in that he won the heart of a fair lady evidently intended for him by the Fates from the beginning.

The story of "One Wonderful Night" is of a series of occurences the like of which has never been known to happen in the ordinary humdrum life of the man and woman who eat three square meals a day and go to bed at 10 o'clock on the nights when the bridge club doesn't meet. And the ordinary human wouldn't pay a dime to have 'em happen either. It is only our darlings of the make believe world who greet them with a smile, live through them in a state of charming nonchalance; terrific intensity; wistful longing or ominous acton as the case may be, and, at the end of the fifth reel, brush even the memory of them aside as they would so many spider webs, and resume the usual tenor of their lives.

In the present instance Mr. Rawlinson as John D. Curtis, is called upon to marry a lady who will lose her fortune if she remains a spinster after the midnight hour of the evening of the wonderful night. As you can well imagine there are plenty of people who do not wish the wedding to take place. Thereby hangs the tale.

Mr. Rawlinson as the hero goes smiling, fighting and winning his way through the film in a manner truly commendable. Miss Rich as the lady who must have a husband and have him quick has a double in her chin. The supporting cast supports as it is supposed to. [As THEY are supposed to—is how it should read, I reckon]. There is lots of action that isn't especially convincing—but is action just the same.

There have been many worse pictures than "One Wonderful Night." There have also been many better ones.

CLOSEUPS

Universal plans to show Reginald Denny in a new series of "The Leather Pushers." The first picture of this series will be shown Sunday at the Randolph.

They do say that Gloria Swanson isn't especially fond of Pola Negri and rescued several black cats the foreigner had demanded killed. Until Miss Negri's appearance they declare that Miss Swanson has hated the furry felines as much as the former.

A flame topped bit of femininity named Patterson Dial, who did a spectacular dance in "Aphrodite" two years ago, will support Richard Barthelmess in his coming picture. She was seen with him in "Sonny" where she took the part of the girl who lost her sweetheart in the war, and in "The Seventh Day" she had the role of the New England "hired girl."

Reimers Sings, Spalding Plays in Good Recital

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Paul Reimers, tenor, and Albert Spalding, violinist, combined artistic forces for the second of the Kinsolving musical mornings at the Blackstone hotel yesterday morning. The former was new to the professional stage of this city; the latter, once a Chicagoan, has been away for nearly two years since his last appearance.

Mr. Reimers, one imagines, is well used to singing in small enclosures and interpreting songs with the intimate manner of such surroundings. His voice is light and graceful, and he sings gracefully and amiably, concentrating upon songs that do not need massive volume for their effect. For some reason Mr. Spalding combined two groups of violin pieces, and for some other, or perhaps the same reason, Mr. Reimers did not sing the final group announced for him, a collection of folk songs from many lands.

Mr. Spalding has grown in the art of projecting melody through the medium of the violin until he now ranks well up in the first division. Always safe and sane in his musical ideas, he is now adding the element that he most needed, namely, warmth. He is still a bit self contained: the waltz arranged by David Hochstein from the Brahms set went a little too much on one level, with not quite enough of the give and take of varying tempos. But an arrangement of one of the Chopin Nocturnes, the one that is in the key of G flat for piano and G for violin, was delightful. He is also a composer, introducing his own gavotte-caprice, which was pleasant, if nothing to create much of a commotion over.

"Aida," which ushered in the new era of opera at the Auditorium this season, was repeated last night, with Rosa Raisa, Ina Bourskaya, Charles Marshall, Cesare Formichi, and the others in their former roles, and Giorgio Polacco conducting. Tonight there will be a repetition of the lovely "Sniegurotchka," with Edith Mason, Miss Bourskaya, Cyrena Van Gordon, Angelo Minghetti, Desiré Dufrere, Maria Claessens, Georges Baklanoff, and plenty more, and Richard Hageman at the baton. The opera has a notable ballet.

Learning of a notable type was displayed at Kimball hall last night, when Alexander Sébald played an unaccompanied violin recital of Bach compositions. Such a program requires special gifts in the artist, which is probably why Mr. Sébald played it, and also special gifts in the art of listening.

Democratic Victory Due in 1924, Wilson Writes Woman

North Baltimore, Ohio., Nov. 28.—That the elections of 1924 will result in a "glorious victory" for the Democratic party, is the prediction of former President Wilson in a letter to Mrs. Jay Borough, local Democratic worker, made public today. "It is my belief that if all the party workers will keep steadily at it for the next two years, the fight so well begun on Nov. 7, will result in a glorious victory in 1924," the ex-President wrote.

Five Cities to View Tribune Prize Designs

Building Plans Will Be Shown Over Country.

After Chicago has viewed the $100,000 competition designs for the new Tribune building, they will start on their travels to five centers of architectural instruction in this country.

This tour of the most comprehensive exhibit of the handling of the skyscraper theme that has ever been assembled will begin immediately after the show which is to open at the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, North Michigan boulevard and Ohio street, on Dec. 4 and continue until Dec. 11.

The idea of the traveling exhibit originated with Frederic A. Delano of Chicago and Washington, adviser to the federal government on many important measures and member of the federal reserve board under two administrations. This is his plan:

"I have been very much impressed with what THE TRIBUNE has done in connection with the competition for its new office building, and it has seemed to me that it would be of enormous value to the architectural schools of our country if you would consent to loan these plans for the purpose of exhibition to students as a demonstration of how a problem of this nature should be approached and dealt with."

"There are in our country five or six well known architectural schools of high grade. My immediate appeal to you is on behalf of the School of Architecture of Harvard university, but I assume that in granting to Harvard the privilege of exhibiting these designs you would grant a similar privilege to the Boston Technological school, the School of Architecture at New York, the Architectural School of the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, and the School of Architecture at Pittsburgh.

"Let me again assure you of my conviction of the great educational value which this exhibit will possess both for Chicago and the entire country."

Meanwhile—announcement of the prize winning competitor's name will be made in next Sunday's TRIBUNE and the Chicago exhibit will open next Monday.

Urges Students in N. U. to Give Place to Religion

A plea for a larger influence of Christianity in the education of students at Northwestern university was voiced by President Walter Dill Scott, at a meeting attended by all the faculty members in Harris hall, last night.

"Northwestern is not an athletic association to develop a high standard of amateur intercollegiate athletics; nor a glorified social club to promote social events in the interest of young men and women; nor a church or institution for the dissemination of propaganda for any particular faith; nor an institution to teach any special language or science or philosophy," President Scott said. "Nor is it a substitute for any of these. But was founded with the definite purpose of furthering the interests of Christian learning. To that end we must all work."

Real Thanksgiving Dinner Planned for War Heroes

With a Thanksgiving dinner and program in the Cameo room at the Morrison hotel, a committee of representative women of Chicago, in cooperation with the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, is remembering ex-service men tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harriet Howard, executive secretary, announced that veterans who have neither a place to go nor the price of a meal on Thanksgiving should apply at room 316, 179 West Washington street.

More than 1,000 men, it is estimated, will be the committee's guests. Ex-service men who are able to pay for their dinners, but who want to join in the celebration, will be able to attend without making reservations, the committee states. Harry Lauder yesterday appealed to the Rotary club to donate money for the dinner.

Countess De Maupas Granted Divorce in Paris

PARIS, Nov. 28.—A divorce has been granted to Countess De Maupas, who was Miss Consuelo Morgan, daughter of the American consul general at Brussels, and who married Count Jean De Maupas in July, 1920. She instituted the divorce proceedings last May and the count at the same time brought a separation suit, which also has been granted.

ROSALEEN had one reluctant moment of admitting danger. "With those eyes he might have done—anything—lawless—if he wanted to—hard enough . . ."

Introducing Miss Clancy by Fanny Heaslip Lea
A BLUE RIBBON story in the big Coloroto Magazine of Sunday's Tribune

DAILY HOROSCOPE
Doris Blake Says:

TODAY IS LUCKY FOR THE FAVOR SEEKER.

Good overshadows evil in today's planetary influence, according to astrology. Early in the day the sun and Venus are in benefic aspect. Those seeking employment, or advancement, or favors of a personal nature should make their pleas in the early hours of the day. Projects which need cooperation will find no better day than this for approach.

Popularity and social gain is forecast for those whose birth date this is. Those in employ will benefit.

You are by nature fiery, determined, quick to decide and act, but can bide your time as well. You are a good talker, jovial, quite an ornament to the society in which you are thrown. You are fond of society, sports, games, but rather a stickler for convention, at that. You are given to fretting yourself about small things—fancied slights or grievances. You are perhaps a trifle too self-centered for your own good, yet not addicted to flattery, unless it comes from one whose word you value. You are not in the habit of tendering advice; your conventionality relating more to your own habits than others'. You are a good loser; perfectly willing to admit your own mistakes; a pretty nice all round person.

Children born on this day should prove affectionate, popular, and highly respected.

Silly to Quarrel.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have come for advice as hundreds have done before me. I have been going with a girl I love, but recently we have drifted apart because of some misunderstanding about a letter. She thinks I love another girl. She now goes with another fellow. I think she is doing it just for spite. Should I try to win her back or should I just let it all go and forget her and find some one else?

"A. M. B."

If you love her, step up to her like a man and talk it out. Silly children, both of you, not to patch the quarrel up right away quickly, when just a few words are necessary.

HAROLD TEEN—HE SAID A MOUTHFUL

Bright Sayings of the Children

After the supper hour, while the children were romping and playing their indoor games, Alma Louise, who is much younger than the others, was called by mother and prepared for bed. After lying there for a few minutes without being able to go to sleep, she called, "Start me, mother. I'm all mixed up." S. E. V. T.

People in the next apartment to ours have a bow legged baby.

Esther, returned from playing with him, said: "Isn't it too bad about Davy? I guess they walked his legs too soon." O. D.

Norma and Jean, sent to town for a loaf of bread came triumphantly back, each wheeling a new doll in a new buggy.

Lauder Guest of Rotarians.

Harry Lauder was the guest of honor at the annual Thanksgiving luncheon of the Chicago Rotary club at the Hotel Sherman yesterday, when about 800 members were present.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Struggling On Bravely.

"Please ask for a typewriter to enable a woman to make her living at home. This woman was doing office work until four years ago, when she slipped and fell, breaking her thigh. The bones failed to knit, so she has to use crutches to get about, earning her living selling articles from door to door. The time when footing will become precarious from rough weather is near at hand, so a typewriter would be a great gift to this woman who is struggling on so bravely. T. P."

Earning her living under great difficulty, isn't she? I do hope some one will step forward with the typewriter to make her way easier.

For an Invalid.

"Has one of your readers some cast-off crutches measuring about forty-six inches for an invalid who hopes soon to walk? Thank you. MRS. W. H."

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Five Cranberry Recipes in One.

Pick over and wash one pound of the light cranberries; add two cups of boiling water, cover saucepan at first so that cranberries on top will be as hot as those in the water, and cook five minutes. They may stand on the stove five minutes longer with a cover over, but the idea is to get a delicate flavored liquid, and the longer the cranberries are cooked the stronger this liquid will be.

Pour cooked cranberries into strainer. Two cups or a little more liquid, the color of a pomegranate juice or a little lighter, will run through. Set this aside and press the pulp through the strainer. There will be about three-fourths of a cup of it. Add a little of the juice to make up the cup. Add one cup of sugar to this, stir until it is dissolved and the whole is hot; then pour into molds. A bit of it is pretty enough to use as a garnish for the following mousse:

Add a cup of sugar to one cup of juice; stir till sugar is dissolved and the strup thickens. Pour this over the beaten whites of two eggs, or, better, get some one to pour it over for you while you keep on beating them. Add a few drops of lemon juice, or up to that of half a lemon. Pack in small molds in ice and salt for about two hours, and serve as sherbet.

Instead of packing at this point fold in nearly a cup of cream whipped, and you will have a dainty preparation for a mousse. It will come out like some daintily flavored fruit ice cream—cranberries not recognized. The strup poured over the egg whites is good to use at the center of grapefruit to sweeten it. If the pulp is cooked with an equal measure of raspberry strup instead of sugar, you get a stiff jelly of another character.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Schiff of 4458 Magnolia avenue announced the engagement of their daughter, Viola, to Myron H. Griesheim of Bloomington, Ill.

Many Smart Suits and Frocks Depend Solely Upon Lines

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The side issues are certainly the main issue nowadays. Thus in this three piece suit of heavy green rep we find the only break in the line of loose jacket and plain skirt achieved by drawing the folds of the former in at the sides. This is accomplished by two bronze ornaments on either side.

The dress is a perfectly straight line affair finished at the neck line with bronze braid and held at the sides of the long waist line by the same agency. Similarly the hat features a great deal of bronze metal embroidery.

It is to be noted that many of the most fashionable women nowadays select suits and three piece costumes which often eschew any such lavish use of fur as we find on more popularized and really less costly models. These garments depend on tailoring and on some striking application of folds or tucks to distinguish them. Puffed cords and puffed tucks are both often used, both in this province and on wraps. Also folds of self-material are sometimes arranged in a sawtooth pattern which bands the wrap, suit, or frock.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

J. F.: I WILL PRINT THE FORMula again, but you had better have it made up promptly, before the chap trouble gets worse. It is: Two parts lanoline; one part boroglycerin, six parts cold cream made with white vaseline. Rub on hands and face before retiring at night.

MARTHA: THE COMB THAT IS possessed of best qualities for general use has smooth teeth, which are wide apart, with blunt tips. The material of which it is made is not so important, so long as the form is correct. Celluloid combs are dangerous because of their easy inflammability. It is not an infrequent thing for one to be injured by the explosive burning of a celluloid comb. I shall be glad to send you my articles on the treatment of oily hair infected with dandruff, if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

DOROTHY: VASELINE APPLIED with a tiny camel's hair brush to the eyebrows nightly, shaping them delicately at the same time, is the best eyebrow beautifier. For the eyelashes, too, this is recommended, but it works right merrily if you get it into your eyes.

Evangeline Booth Whispers Story to Chicago in Rags

Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army stood last evening in Orchestra hall before an audience of 3,000 dressed in a ragged costume with a plaid shawl over her head and around her shoulders and a basket of flowers in her hands and whispered her message of love to Chicago and the world.

"Commander Evangeline Booth has been ordered by her physician not to speak a loud word and in fact not to leave her bed," said Clifford W. Barnes, who introduced her and interpreted to the audience what she whispered in his ear, "but she has come here because she did not want to disappoint you. This is what she is whispering to me." Mr. Barnes then repeated after Miss Booth as follows:

"My beloved friends, you know you are all in my heart. I am bitterly disappointed that I cannot tell my story of God's love in the darkest slums of the great cities. You see that I am not only dressed in rags but my throat is in rags. Some day I am coming back again to deliver my lecture."

Commissioner William Peart and Col. William Evans, who founded the army in Chicago nearly thirty-eight years ago, described the success which has attended the Salvation Army. The Chicago staff band played.

The meeting marks the close of the territorial congress which has been attended by 750 officers from fifteen states.

Stars in Berlin Opera.

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—[Via Tribune Wireless.]—Mabel Garrison, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera company of New York, and well known on the Chicago concert stage, who last night sang the lead of "The Barber of Seville" at the Berlin Opera house, sang a portion of the work in German instead of the customary Italian, which the critics asserted was a "pleasing innovation for the audience."

Removing the Mirth.

Our hostess brought in a box of pictures. The first one she showed us was a wedding picture. Well, it was a sight. The groom looked like the bride's son, and the bride wore a queer dress and a long trained veil.

So I just laughed and laughed and said, "This woman surely took a boy to raise," and passed it on, and after a while I took the picture again and had another laugh over it.

Well, that was all that was said until we were going home, when I said again, "Guess I'll have another look at that picture."

Then my hostess ran to the picture and said, with eyes shining with indignation: "No you won't, you have had enough fun out of that picture. It is our wedding picture. I'm ten years older than my husband, so have another laugh," she added scornfully.

I had been invited to a friend's for a week end. When we last saw each other I had had a small appetite, but it had improved wonderfully. I slept late the morning after my arrival and, not wishing to disturb my friend, proceeded to get my own breakfast. I cut five slices of bread, put them on the toaster, and got ready the coffee.

My friend came in, saw the pile of toast, and said, "You don't need to make any for me. I've had my breakfast."

I had to tell her that I knew she had

FOREIGN TRADE BRINGS ADVANCE FOR ALL GRAINS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Buying of cash wheat and futures by foreigners and exporters coming at a time when the market was oversold as the result of the decline of 5¼@7¼c from the recent high point brought about a sharp upturn in all grains. There was a noticeable lack of pressure and the finish was at the top with net gains of 2@2¾c on wheat, 1⅝@2c on corn, ¾@1c on oats and 2¼@2⅝c on rye.

Liverpool disappointed the bears and closed unchanged to ¼c higher, and local shorts had to compete with foreigners to buy futures at the opening with first sales as much as 1½c higher. At no time was there a pronounced selling movement and on all the dips strong commission houses bought freely, with the seaboard taking hold and reported a big demand for cash grain, with sales of over 1,500,000 bu, mainly Manitobas.

While there was a lack of news on corn that was construed as radically bullish, there was active covering by local shorts and also sufficient buying by bulls to readily absorb all offerings, and the market showed stubborn resistance to pressure from the start. At the outside prices were up 2½@2¾c from the low of the previous day, with the finish within a fraction of the top. December went to 1c over the May, against ⅜c on Monday.

Oats showed a firm undertone, although trade was largely of a local character. Premiums in the sample market were firmer and shipping demand fair.

Liquidation appeared to have run its course in rye and the latter grain maintained a discount of about 20c under wheat. Export demand was reported as slow, however, with bids for cash grain at the seaboard 1@1½c lower.

Buying of May lard credited to eastern interests, with short covering in the January, gave provisions a stronger undertone early, the January-May spread narrowing to 7½c. Toward the last smaller packers sold May, and the finish was on a reaction, with prices 2¼c higher to 2½c lower. Ribs were unchanged. Cash trade remains good. Prices follow:

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—A friendly receivership was asked for and granted C. H. Wills & Co., motor manufacturers, of Marysville, Mich., through the United States courts today, and the Security Trust company of Detroit was appointed receiver. Although the company is said to be entirely solvent, this process was deemed expedient in order to refinance and conserve the best interests of all concerned. The Michigan Malleable Iron company of Detroit instituted proceedings in behalf of the company.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat at the seaboard was fairly brisk and estimated at 1,250,000 to 1,500,000 bu, largely Manitobas to the United Kingdom and the continent. Greece has asked for offers of 1,850,000 bu for acceptance on Dec. 5. Corn sales were 150,000 to 200,000 bu, and rye 100,000 bu.

Chicago handlers sold 25,000 bu rye to exporters and 51,000 bu wheat, 30,000 bu corn, and 100,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with 100,000 bu oats and 10,000 bu rye to go to store. Deliveries on November contracts were 5,000 bu corn.

Offerings of cash wheat on spot were not large and premiums here were firm with No. 2 red sold at 11¼c and No. 3 red at 11c over December. No. 2 hard brought 1½@3c over. Receipts 28 cars. Outside markets were 1@2c higher. Premiums at Minneapolis were 1@3c better.

A firmer undertone prevailed in the cash corn market with old No. 2 mixed 2c, yellow 2¾@3c, and white 2½c over December. Receipts, 140 cars. Outside markets, 1c lower to 1c higher.

FLOUR TRADE BETTER

A local miller reports the best local flour trade the past two months of any time in five years. The mill is sold ahead for two months. Local bakers are lightly stocked and are buying freely when immediate delivery can be made. Good sales of flour have also been made to the east the past few days and the flour trade in all has improved. One-third of the capacity of the Washburn-Crosby mill at Minneapolis has been shut down until after Thanksgiving, due to scarcity of cars and in an effort to get wheat at lower prices.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Grain traders who regarded the markets as having turned at the inside prices on Monday were positive of their position at the finish yesterday, and while they looked for setbacks after sharp bulges they favored buying on all breaks. The rally of 3@4c from the low point of Monday to the high of today was an illustration of what wheat can do when oversold.

A number of big shorts covered wheat around the top prices with good sized losses, as they had expected lower prices and were overextended to an extent that necessitated covering when they saw the market turn strongly against them. Around the top prices selling attributed to early buyers was noticeable.

December wheat and corn tightened, with wheat hard to buy at one time at 3c over May, and closed at about that difference. Early in the day the spread was 1¼c. In corn December was 1c over after being almost even with May for a time on Monday, and oats advanced from ¼c to ⅝c over May. Surplus was taken off the market by cash houses early.

J. A. Rodgers & Co. and Mayfield & Co. have consolidated, the combination being the Rodgers & Mayfield Co., handling grains, stocks and bonds. Offices are to be at 59 Board of Trade and 116 East Monroe street. Both interests have been well known in the trade for years.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1922: Fairchild News Service.]

NEW YORK.—Demand in the local gray goods market today showed no signs of improvement from the dullness of the past several days. Print cloth prices continued unchanged.

PHILADELPHIA.—Nainsook athletic underwear for next summer is having a very large sale in the wholesale market here. More than ordinary attention is being given also to lightweight knitted underwear.

ST. LOUIS.—Raw fur prices at local floor sales range from firm to slightly upward. Seldom, however, according to dealers, are advances equal to improvement in the quality of skins.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Dressed turkeys sold at 45c yesterday, a drop of 5c for the day. Supplies were larger and buyers not anxious to take hold. Local trade was depended upon, the time being too short to ship to other markets. Ducks were off 3c, and values of other dressed poultry were unchanged. Live spring chickens declined ½c. Arrivals of all live poultry were 14 cars and 1,555 coops.

Fresh eggs were taken fairly and prices unchanged. Arrivals were 1,841 cases, against 2,882 cases last year.

Scarcity of fresh fancy creamery butter here and in all eastern markets held prices firmly and brought out a better demand for lower grades and storage stock, the latter being taken more freely.

Cheese buyers in the Wisconsin markets were slower to take hold, owing to advanced prices asked. At Chicago firmness in the Wisconsin markets was reflected here, although business was not large. Eastern markets were firm to a shade higher, the latter at Philadelphia.

BUSINESS GOOD, MORE COIN GOES INTO DIVIDENDS

BY O. A. MATHER.

Further evidence of better business and improved corporation earnings was at hand yesterday.

The Quaker Oats company yesterday increased the annual rate from 8 to 10 per cent by declaring a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, payable Jan. 15 to stock of record Dec. 30.

The American Can company declared an initial quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the common stock, payable Feb. 15 to stock of record Jan. 31. This puts the issue on a 5 per cent annual basis. Since payment of back dividends on the preferred stock was completed in 1917, the company has devoted earnings to building up its surplus. It was officially stated that the financial position is strong; that earnings this year have been good, and prospects excellent, and that the common stock dividend rate is conservative.

Nunnally Declares Dividend.

The Nunnally company declared a dividend of 50 cents, payable Dec. 30 to stock of record Dec. 9. This is the first distribution since Dec. 31, 1921, when 50 cents was paid. The Adams Express company declared a quarterly dividend of $1 out of accumulated surplus, payable Dec. 30 to stock of record Dec. 15. The last previous disbursement was made Dec. 1, 1917, when $1 a share was paid.

Stockholders of the Niquero Sugar company will vote on Dec. 12 on increasing the capital stock from $1,500,000 to $5,000,000, divided into $1,000,000 preferred and $4,500,000 common stock. A stock dividend is expected. Stockholders of Lit Brothers will vote on Dec. 28 on declaring a 100 per cent stock dividend. The Manila Electric corporation proposes to increase its captial stock from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. Other proposed increases are: Gibson Manufacturing company, $500,000 to $2,000,000; G. P. Putnam Sons, $200,000 to $500,000; Norcott mills, $250,000 to $400,000.

Rail Valuation Example.

The oft repeated charge of excessive railroad capitalization was given another and striking rebuff yesterday. The interstate commerce commission announced a tentative valuation of $382,197,000, as of June 30, 1915, on the property of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and its subsidiaries. The company's total stocks and bonds at par amount to $391,487,000. Its balance sheet placed total assets at $414,949,000.

That the commission's valuation of the New Haven, despite its recent rather unsavory history, should be so close to its outstanding capitalization was a matter of keen interest to the railroad fraternity. This valuation, together with that of the Rock Island system, which was announced several months ago, have been among the largest individual accomplishments of the commission in the field of railway valuation.

Conditions in the transportation field continue to improve. The car shortage on Nov. 6 totaled 174,498 cars, a decrease of 4,741 compared with Oct. 31. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul announced yesterday the placing of orders for 5,500 cars. The Pacific Fruit company has authorized construction of 1,000 new refrigerator cars to be delivered early next year at an approximate cost of $15,000,000. The company already has 3,300 cars building. The St. Louis Southwestern plans to spend $5,000,000 on improvements.

Savings Deposits Increase.

"Continued improvement is shown in savings deposits," the Chicago Federal Reserve bank says in its monthly review. "Savings deposits on Nov. 1 had increased considerably over a year ago. The average account also increased over Oct. 1, but is again less than a year ago. Last year there was little change in the amount of savings deposits or the average account, while in 1920 gains were reported.

"October production of both passenger cars and trucks was considerably larger than in September. Dealers report a very active raw wool market, and advancing prices during October, and, although offerings were limited, demand was good the first part of November. Shoe manufacturers report business good and are well sold up to the end of the year. Production and sales of agricultural machinery declined slightly in October, but were ahead of October, 1921."

INDICT BROKERS OF CRASH IN N. Y. LAST FEBRUARY

New York, Nov. 28.—Three indictments charging grand larceny and bucketing were returned against Roy H. MacMasters and his stepfather, John F. MacMasters, connected with the stock brokerage house of R. H. MacMasters & Co., which failed last February for $600,000. The concern, when it failed, had offices in New York, Chicago, Petersburg, Va.; Richmond, Va.; Milwaukee, New Haven, Pittsburgh, and Hartford.

Detroit Brokers Suspended.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28.—Three members of the Detroit stock exchange today were suspended indefinitely and a fourth was suspended for one year for violations of the by-laws of the exchange. Indefinite suspension was voted against William A. Neer & Co., Lee Gustin & Co., and W. J. Peoples & Co. F. J O'Neil & Co was suspended for one year

Dallas Brokers Warned.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—The Imperial Production company of Dallas, Tex., and its promoters, J. T. Craig and S. F. Tubbs of Dallas, and J. B. Bright of Kiowa, Okla., were ordered by the federal trade commission today to discontinue alleged false representation in the sale of oil stock.

The New York Times.

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Whether from a single cause or whether from a diversity of causes, today was the occasion of a rise in prices in practically all the markets.

In the case of stocks, the recovery was emphatic. It began with the opening of business, continued with little or no interruption throughout the day, and evidently reflected the retreat of professional speculators for the decline who had had their own way in the market during the two preceding business days.

Along with the stock market a considerable number of bonds advanced, and for the first time in several weeks the grain and cotton markets moved up rather rapidly in company with the financial market.

"Year End Settlements" Factor.

The reasons commonly assigned for this general advance in prices naturally varied in the different markets, but they had this in common, that in all the markets a time was approaching when the lately active "bear speculators" might, by force of circumstances, be placed in an awkward position. The nearness of the "year-end settlements" and the "January reinvestment" traditionally insures at an early date at least a test of the outside public's attitude owards both stocks and bonds.

On the stock exchange today's recovery affected the whole market. An unusually large number of stocks, both railway and industrial, advanced a point or more, and gains of 2@3 points were not exceptional in both groups of shares. Prices, as a rule, ended around the highest of the day.

Bond Action Less Uniform.

The bond market was less uniform in its movement; there were declines as well as advances. But the upward tendency was fairly general in that market also, even the French government bonds holding reasonably firm. The action of these bonds was perhaps more noteworthy in that Paris exchange was driven to the lowest rate in nearly two weeks, touching a figure a full half cent below the rate reached in last week's recovery. Probably the real basis for this continued selling of the franc was the unusually large purchases of foodstuffs which France is making and must make in the American market. There is also plain evidence of movement of funds from Paris to London.

Tide Water Power.

R. F. L., Berwyn, Ill.—The $3,000,000 Tide Water company first and refunding mortgage 6 per cent bonds, series A, are secured by a mortgage on the Wilmington, N. C., property, subject to the prior lien of $386,000 closed mortgage bonds on part of it. They are further secured by pledge of all the first mortgage bonds of the St. Petersburg, Fla., Lighting company, as well as of its voting control. The valuation of the properties is given as substantially in excess of the funded debt of $4,886,000. Net earnings, including subsidiaries, after maintenance and taxes, but before depreciation, for the last five calendar years, have averaged $370,342, or over 1¾ times annual interest charges on the present total mortgage debt. For the year ended June 30, 1922, such earnings were $612,435, or over 2.9 times such interest charges. These bonds are a business man's investment.

Brief Answers.

J. O'C., Grand Haven, Mich.—The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific first and refunding mortgage 4s of 1904, due 1934, are well secured. They are a sound investment.

S. G.—The Central Paper company first mortgage 6½ per cent bonds have been reviewed. Send stamped, addressed envelope if you wish the clipping.

General tendency of live stock values was upward yesterday, cattle selling strong to 25c higher, with opening hog quotations mostly 10c above Monday and sheep and lambs steady to 10c higher. Best beef steers offered sold at $13.25, top hogs ,$8.30, fancy 138 lb pigs, $8.50, and best lambs at $14.90. Cattle held strong all day, while hogs closed slightly below early selling.

Lively competition operated in favor of the hog trade, with eastern shippers among the principal buyers. Yard traders purchased freely, while big packers held off until late in the forenoon. The day's average price of hogs at $8.10 was highest since Nov. 15, standing 40c above a week ago and $1.20 higher than a year ago.

Lambs Advance Farther.

While aged and yearling stock sold indifferently on a level with the recent decline, choice lambs cashed freely for eastern shipment at strong to shade higher prices. Top reached $14.90 several times, being within 10c of the highest this month. With demand favoring poultry rather than mutton during Thanksgiving holiday period, aged sheep were practically unsalable, with extreme wooly ewes dropping below $5.00; lightweights sold at $7.25. When Your Money Goes on Strike

THE INVESTOR'S aim is to make his money work for him, yielding him good and unceasing return. But like human labor, money often ceases working and goes on strike. Sometimes it never returns to its task of providing income.

When your money goes on strike it means that your investments have not been wisely chosen. Keeping our clients' money at work, advising them what to buy and retain, informing them of developments affecting their holdings, continuously protecting them—these are all features of our service.

"The Art of Wise Investing" just issued by us will tell you all about it. Send for a free copy.

ADDRESS G A 161, TRIBUNE

To Every Bondholder

Such information often is wanted when it is not convenient to make a trip to the safe deposit box.

An easy way to have these facts accessible at all times is to enter them in our "Investment Record Book." Loose leaf sheets provide space for all information which you may need.

If you will furnish us with a list of your holdings, we shall be glad to enter your bonds in the Investment Record before sending it.

American Hominy Company

First Mortgage Seven Per Cent Serial Gold Bonds

The undersigned Committee pursuant to the terms of a Protective Agreement dated June 20, 1922, hereby gives notice of its approval and adoption of a Plan and Agreement for Readjustment of the indebtedness owing by the American Hominy Company, and that a copy of such Plan and Agreement for Readjustment has been lodged by the Committee with Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street, New York City, the Depositary, and with the Merchants Loan & Trust Company, 112 West Adams Street, Chicago, Ill., Agent of the Depositary, under the above mentioned Protective Agreement.

The Plan, if declared operative, will become effective as of January 1, 1923. Interest due that day on the outstanding bonds will be paid by the Company. A 20% cash payment will be made on account of the principal of all bonds participating in the readjustment. For the balance remaining due on the principal of the present bonds, new Ten-Year First Mortgage Bonds will be issued. All expenses of the readjustment will be borne by the Company.

THE TIME FOR DEPOSIT OF BONDS WILL EXPIRE ON DECEMBER 20, 1922. The Committee now represents 72% of the outstanding bonds. The proposed Plan can be declared operative only when sufficient of the bondholders have assented thereto (as evidenced by the deposit of their bonds) to justify, in the opinion of this Committee and the Creditors of the Company, the consummation of the Plan.

Shifting Economic Conditions

THE hundreds of millions of dollars in new securities which have been issued make this situation even more complex and therefore discrimination in making investments is most essential.

Our many years' experience in dealing with various classes of securities has placed us in position to act in an advisory capacity to Banks, Trust Companies, Institutions, Trustees, Private Investors and Business Men.

Furthermore, having accomplished successful financing in the past, we are prepared at any time to refinance well-established industrial corporations whose earning power is assured, with a view to enabling them to expand their business.

Equipment includes 4 balloon tires, spare tire cover, bumper, rear traffic signal, spring covers, and Houdaille shock absorbers. The purchaser of this car will be given a new car warranty. CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, BROUGHAM. The unusual low price placed on this 5 passenger enclosed model is in no way indicative of the careful attention it has had in the hands of the previous owner. Equipment includes 4 balloon tires, spare tire cover, bumper, rear traffic signal, spring covers, and Houdaille shock absorbers. The purchaser of this car will be given a new car warranty. We have given it a thorough mechanical overhauling and the purchaser will receive the car that should be one-half a new car's cost. It has been repainted a beautiful Berkshire green. Equipped with real covers, spare tire cover, spotlight, and bijlex bumper. An attractive bargain at $3,300.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, BROUGHAM. The unusual low price placed on this 5 passenger enclosed model is in no way indicative of the careful attention it has had in the hands of the previous owner. Tires are almost new and equipment includes sun visor, spotlights, spare tire, and front bumper. Specially priced at $1,500.
